

HURLBUT IS SLATED HOUSE FLOOR LEADER

FRIENDS OF SPEAKER HULL SAY OMRO ASSEMBLYMAN WILL HEAD JUDICIARY COMMITTEE.

VOTE ON SPEAKERSHIP

Republicans Stay by Caucus Nominee And Elect Hull Over Roesler By Margin of Thirty Votes.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Jan. 9.—Although speaker Merlin Hull declined to make any comments on the subject it is altogether probable from the discussion among the speaker's closest friends that Assemblyman Wilbur E. Hurlbut of Omro, will be selected as chairman of the judiciary committee. The chairman of this committee is always considered as the floor leader of the house. Among the members of the assembly judiciary last year Attorney Hurlbut is the only one to be returned. There is some talk of L. L. Johnson for the place, but the fact that he is not a practicing lawyer at the present time militates against his chances.

Insurance Committee. The insurance committee will be one of the most important at this session of the legislature. The special joint committee, which investigated the subject of fire insurance rates in the state, will report upon a number of needed laws. During the past year Assemblyman Johnson has been chairman of the assembly side of this committee and it now seems likely that he will be given the chairmanship of this committee of the house.

To Thomas J. Mahon will probably go the chairmanship of the committee on elections. Newcomb Spoor of Berlin is also mentioned for this place. Both of these assemblymen served on this committee last year and as re-elected members are generally given a preference it seems likely one of these two will be selected.

Other Chairmanships. It seems generally conceded that Axel Johnson of Turtle Lake, will be chosen as chairman of the committee on agriculture. He is a farmer and at the session two years ago was selected by Speaker Ingram to head this committee.

It appears that Ray J. Nye of Superior, who was second in the speakership contest, is generally talked of to head the committee on state affairs. Assemblyman Nye is a member of the board of public affairs, which has devoted much time this summer considering a state budget, and his information on this subject may entitle him to the position.

It is also likely that Dr. S. C. Goff of Elkhorn will be chosen as the chairman of the committee on public health and sanitation.

Vote on Speaker. Both the assembly and senate elected the caucus nominees for officers of those bodies yesterday. The name of Merlin Hull, successful candidate for speaker, was presented by Axel Johnson; of O. F. Roesler, democrat, by A. J. Heddington; of James H. Vint, social democrat, by E. J. Kiefer; and E. J. Kneen, progressive democrat, by Judson Hall.

The vote on speaker follows: For Hull: Allison, Anderson, Bartingale, Batts, Bingham, Bowe, Carpenter, Chincock, Clancy, August Everett, Frederick, Gannon, Goff, Grimsrud, Grinde, Gulickson, Don C. Hall, Hawn, Hede, Holmes, Hoverson, Hurlbut, Jensen, Axel Johnson, K. A. Johnson, L. L. Johnson, Laursen, Laycock, Mahon, McComb, Meland, Miller, Morey, Nye, O'Connor, Ott, Paul, Peaver, Penning, Potts, Rhea, Richards, Richardson, Roth, Ross, Sawyer, Schilling, Schuttler, Schuttler, Schwitzer, Sharp, Sommerfield, Spoor, Telfer, Urquhart, Whiteside.—59.

For Roesler: Burke, J. Dietrich, Dolan, Gindice, Judson Hall, Hansen, Hedding, Hinkle, Jennings, Litz, Stanning, Murphy, O'Day, Paul, Scanlon, Stuart, Stempfer, Walsh, Ziller.—19.

For Kneen: Conway, Dorin, Hannan, Hood, Kneen, Lentz, Nordman, Peckart, Schultz, N. Stewart, Thomas Stewart, Viebahn.—12.

For Vint: Cornick, Kiefer, Minkley, Smith, Zinn.—5.

Shaffer For Clerk. Speaker Hull's address of acceptance follows. His concluding words were: "We are as representatives of the people, and as such we should subordinate every other consideration, either personal or political, to the good of the state. Wisconsin is in the front rank as a progressive state. We should keep it there and we shall keep it there if we do our work faithfully and well."

EKERN PERSISTS IN OCCUPYING OFFICE; HOT FIGHT IS SEEN

Deposed Insurance Commissioner Spends His Time Serenely at His Desk in Defiance at Governor McGovern.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Jan. 9.—There is considerable speculation here this morning as to what proceedings will be used by the governor to prevent Herman L. Ekern from occupying the office of commissioner of insurance. Ekern does not intend to relinquish the office and spent the afternoon yesterday as serenely at his desk as if nothing had happened. Some of his friends claim that the doors will have to be boarded up to keep Ekern out. The insurance commissioner contends that the governor cannot depose him and that he is still the commissioner of insurance.

When Senator La Follette was governor and had a controversy with State Treasurer John J. Kempf over the amount of his bond, he stationed a policeman at the door of the treasury office and would not let Kempf enter until a bond in the proper amount had been filed.

Some lawyers who have been studying the ouster case against Ekern, depose insurance commissioner, claim that Ekern will be able to hold office until a successor is appointed and confirmed by the senate.

Should the construction given the law by attorneys be held there is some doubt if the senate would confirm any name for insurance commissioner that would be certified to it.

It seems to be the general opinion that the governor can appoint an official after the legislature is no longer in session.

SUFFRAGETTES GET LONG JAIL TERMS

Two Militant English Women Sentenced to Eight Months' Imprisonment Each.

London, Jan. 9.—Long sentences were passed today on two of the militant suffragettes, many of whom in recent months, have engaged in a campaign of destruction of the mails. Mae Billingham and Louisa Gay, two of the first to be arrested in connection with these outrages, were brought up for trial at the Old Bailey today and condemned to eight months' imprisonment each.

Mae Billingham, who is a cripple and unable to get about except on a bicycle, already has been imprisoned on several occasions in connection with the suffrage campaign. The evidence given today showed that letter boxes throughout the center and the west end of London had been damaged, together with their contents by means of acids, sticky fluids of various kinds, varnish and ink. In some cases inflammable materials such as rags soaked in lamp oil had been inserted through the slits in the boxes for the admission of the mail. Many valuable documents have been destroyed in this way. These included money orders, contracts, checks and bank notes.

It was a matter of difficulty to capture the perpetrators of the outrages in the act, as in most instances the destructive fluids were cast into the boxes in uncorked bottles contained in ordinary envelopes.

THUG SHOT BY HIS INTENDED VICTIM

Hold-up Man Slightly Wounded By Man After He Had Shot Police Man Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, Jan. 9.—After shooting policeman Charles Griffin in the head, Harry Evans, 24 years old, was himself shot and wounded in a revolver duel with a citizen he attempted to hold up this forenoon. Evans suffered a flesh wound and escaped, but was arrested a few hours later in a rooming house. Peter Jansen who was with Evans when the latter shot the policeman, was arrested also. After wounding the detective, Evans fled with the revolver in his hand and two blocks away attempted to hold up John Vanderost who drew a revolver and fired five shots at the man. Evans fled a short distance and then emptied his revolver at Vanderost but the latter escaped injury.

Victims of a number of robberies identified Evans and Jansen at a north side police station. Jansen is an ex-convict according to his own admission.

GREEN BAY TO SEEK THE PERRY PAGEANT

Citizens Plan to Secure Centennial Fleet as Part of Attraction For 1913 Homecoming.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Green Bay, Jan. 9.—Green Bay business men had a meeting last night and decided to arrange a home coming celebration and to secure the land and water pageant in connection with the Perry Victory centennial this year. President John Martin of the commercial club was commissioned to appoint a committee to take up the proposition, and enlist financial assistance from the business people.

That the money can be secured is the belief of those who spoke at the meeting. About $7,000 is needed, and in view of the fact that that sum of money was secured for two conventions held here in 1911, it is thought there will be no trouble in getting the required amount. The city is expected to give $1,000.

Three Milwaukee men, James Bell secretary of the Wisconsin Perry's Victory Centennial commission, Louis Bohmrich, and Andrew D. Agnew, representing the business interests, have been identified with this project, spoke here. Mr. Bell asserted he believed Green Bay was best located to stage the water pageant of any of the cities that are in line for it.

They have worked to help Green Bay in this project and assure the business men they will continue to do so.

WANT ARBITRATION OF WAGE QUESTION

Firemen and Managers of Eastern Roads Agree to Allow Arbitrators to Settle Difficulties.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Jan. 9.—The firemen of fifteen eastern railroads agreed with the railroad managers today to ask Martin A. Knapp judge of the United States court of commerce at Charles P. Neill, United States commissioner of labor, to mediate under the federal act in their controversy over wages and working conditions.

LIVES LOST IN FIRE ON WATER FRONT AT FRISCO.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] San Francisco, Jan. 9.—Two identified bodies have been removed from the ruins of two water front lodging houses destroyed by fire today, and it is possible that others may be found in the ashes. A score or more of guests, one a woman, were injured in their dash for safety. Three firemen were badly hurt by the collapse of one of the buildings.

SWISS RIFLEMEN WILL NOT COME TO MATCH IN U. S.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berne, Switzerland, Jan. 9.—The Swiss rifle men have decided not to go to the United States for the international rifle contest to be held next September at Camp Perry in connection with the centennial celebration of the Perry victory at Lake Erie. The reason given is that no provision has been made for the expenses such as is usual at similar tournaments in Europe.

SHOWS PLACE OF TEXAS AS CORN GROWING STATE.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Greenhouse, Texas, Jan. 9.—That Texas is able to grow corn as well as cotton is strikingly evidenced by the large number and high class of the exhibits at the seventh annual show (which was opened here today) by the Texas Corn Growers' Association. More counties are represented in the display than at any of the previous shows given by the association. The show will continue through the remainder of the week. In connection there will be daily sessions of the corn growers, with lectures and ad-

WILL BLOCK INQUIRY OF THE MONEY TRUST

NEW YORK BANKER REFUSES TO GIVE NAMES IN HIS TESTIMONY BEFORE COMMITTEE.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Jan. 9.—Because he refused to give to the house money trust committee the names of twenty-four national bank officers who profited in a syndicate formed to market stock of the California Petroleum company, George G. Henry of Solomon and company, New York bankers, was certified to the speaker of the house today for contempt. The full banking and currency committee voted unanimously for that action.

Mr. Henry testified that national banks and national bank officers participated in a syndicate to the extent of $1,035,000 and without putting up any money or taking any stock, took profits of about $50,000. He maintained that his confidential relations with his customers would not allow him to furnish the names of the participants and presented a statement framed up by former Senator John C. Spooner, as counsel, justifying his refusal to answer.

Speaker Clark will review the case to determine whether he will certify the record of the district attorney of the District of Columbia for criminal prosecution.

The case threatens to involve the ultimate question of the money trust committee's authority to inquire into the affairs of national banks, which probably would be taken to the supreme court. Opinion on the subject among the government's legal experts in the department of justice differ.

If the Henry case is fought out to a conclusion the committee's inquiry into the questions to which it is slated may be blocked, pending a decision.

Having listened for two days to bankers and experts on economics, the house currency reform committee today began examining representative business men on their views as to necessity for changes in the currency system. The first witness on the day's list was D. J. Enay, of the firm of Artman-Trevelyan company of Philadelphia, chairman of the executive committee of the National Credit Men's association.

In favor of the restoration of the army canteen Secretary Stimson, Surgeon General Tamm, Brigadier General Witherspoon, and Representative Bartholdt of Missouri appeared today before the house military affairs committee, to urge Mr. Bartholdt's bill for that purpose. Secretary Stimson said that without the canteen conditions were worse than when the sale of beer and like wines were allowed at army posts.

Sales of diseased beef to Crow Indians with the knowledge of Indian department officials was charged today by Mrs. Helen Pierce Gray, an investigator, before the senate Indian affairs committee, hearing Senator Townsend's resolution to direct the interior department to send the Crow records to the attorney general for investigation.

Mrs. Gray declared that the flesh of cattle with lung jaw sold to the Indians by lessees of their lands had produced lung jaw among the Indians. Senator Townsend declared he was convinced gross fraud had been perpetrated on the Indians and that investigation should be made.

The earthquake and glassware schedule of the Payne-Adrich tariff was up again today before the house committee on ways and means. About twenty-five witnesses were scheduled to voice their views regarding what the next congress should do with pottery, marble and stone, retort carboys, mica, window glass, and other things.

WOOD COUNTY PIONEER IS DEAD AT RUDOLPH

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Grand Rapids, Wis., Jan. 9.—After an illness of several weeks, Daniel Rezin, Sr., one of the pioneers of Wood county, died at his home in Rudolph last evening, death resulting from pneumonia. The deceased was born in Quebec, Canada, August 19, 1831. He came to Wood county in 1853 and worked for Cline and Edwards in the first saw mill operated in Port Edwards. Mr. Rezin leaves a wife, three sons and one daughter.

OVERALL COMPANY MOVES FACTORY TO GREEN BAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Green Bay, Jan. 9.—The Thomas Overall Company, which has factories located at Fond du Lac and Princeton, has secured a site at Green Bay and will move the equipment of the Princeton plant to this city. About one hundred people will be employed at the beginning, and when the business is better established the Fond du Lac factory will be moved here.

DEMOCRATS CONTROL INDIANA ASSEMBLY

Both Branches of Legislature Have Decided Democratic Membership.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Indianapolis, Jan. 9.—Indiana's sixtieth general assembly convened today for the first time in many years the democrats have absolute control of both branches of the legislature, ninety-five of the one hundred members of the house being democrats, and all but eleven of the fifty in the senate. The progressives have one member in the house and two in the senate. One of them is a hold-over, who was elected as a republican, Governor-elect Samuel M. Ralston, will be inaugurated January 13.

PECULIAR DEATH OF GOVERNMENT CLERK

New York Police Suspect Foul Play in Death of C. L. Swords Found in a Squallid Tenement.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Jan. 9.—C. L. Swords, clerk of the folding room in the house of representatives at Washington, was found dead today in a squallid room at a Seventh avenue lodging house under conditions which led the police to start an investigation.

Swords, a middle aged man, dressed in good clothes, was found by an employee of the house sitting upright in a chair dead. Official papers and a ring were means of identification. A physician reported death as probably due to heart failure, but this was not satisfactory to the police, who could not understand why a man of Swords' type came to be in such a place. It is probable an autopsy will be ordered.

ARCHBALD LETTERS STOLEN BY FORMER COMPANY EMPLOYEES

Former Negro Employee Testifies on Witness Stand As to Circumstances of Purloining.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, Jan. 9.—William W. Winkfield, the former negro employee of the Standard Oil company, who assisted in purloining in what was known as the "Archbald letters" which eventually reached the public through William Randolph Hearst, today told how he "got in on the deal." He ridiculed a report that thirty-four thousand dollars was paid for the letters and brought into the story a new name, that of Frank Morell, who was an office boy and file clerk in the office of the oil company. Winkfield said his connection with the letters was partly accidental. He caught Morell and Charles Stump, he said, taking letter copy books from the files one day, after office hours. This occurred in 1903 and 1904. He did not remember which.

Morell and Stump, Winkfield declared, were so started when he discovered them that they promised to "let him in on the deal" if he kept quiet. F. A. Dennison, Winkfield's attorney explained that the reason his client accepted this proposition was that the Standard Oil Company had refused to raise his salary, although he had worked for them for seven years. Winkfield was asked if he had been followed by emissaries of any one concerned in the publication or suppression of letters, but he declined to answer, on advice of his counsel.

Winkfield does not wish to appear as favoring any body in the controversy," said the lawyer. "Regarding the report that all three of us got $24,000 this is a joke," Winkfield said, "I don't know how much they got, but if I were to have received a third of that amount I didn't get it. I don't want to say just how much I did get, but I'll tell the committee. I didn't know the nature of the letters they were stealing. I only knew that they were the copy books published by the company. I cannot say whether the letters stolen by Stump and Morell, Winkfield will leave tonight for Washington where he will appear before the senate committee on privileges and elections. He has been summoned to testify Saturday on the subject of the alleged stealing of the letters.

ANXIETY EXPRESSED OVER NAVAL CRAFTS

Navy Officials Claim Two Vessels Were Blown Out of Course by Gale and Are Probably Safe.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Jan. 9.—Although no word had been received from either the repair ship Panther or the tug Sonoma, navy department officials today still protested their conviction that the vessels had been blown out of their course by the gales that recently have lashed the Atlantic coast and they would report only when they had joined the battleship fleets of Guantanamo, Cuba. The two ships were due here Friday. Throughout the night the operating officers of the navy department were beset by anxious inquiries, however, and the uncertainty seemed to have had its effect on them. The two navy vessels carry in officers and men a total complement of two hundred and twenty-seven. Orders have been issued to the wireless station at the Washington navy yard to keep vigilant watch for any stray signals from the Panther.

Tug Reported Safe.

Boston, Jan. 9.—The naval tug Sonoma which left Hampton Roads with the Panther arrived at Guantanamo today. No word has been received from the Panther but navy officials insist that there is no reason to fear for her safety.

MESSAGE OF GOVERNOR READ TO LEGISLATURE

McGOVERN'S MESSAGE READ IN SENATE AND ASSEMBLY AT SESSION TODAY.

BOTH HOUSES ADJOURN

Legislature Took Recess Until Monday After Hearing Message and Attending to Minor Matters of Business.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, Jan. 9.—Both houses of the Wisconsin legislature adjourned today until Monday shortly after finishing the reading of the message of Governor F. B. McGovern. In the assembly action was taken providing for the continuance of the session governing the 1911 session. Other business pertained to the make-up of committees. In the senate a bill was introduced providing $450,000 for highway aid.

Humanitarian Projects.

Broad plans for industrial, social and economic betterment are broached in the recommendations to the Wisconsin legislature by Gov. Francis B. McGovern in his message to that body. Legislation for hitherto untried activities by the state is given endorsement, and changes in existing statutes to remedy faults and enlarge their scope are proposed. The governor lauded Wisconsin's place as a leader in "the great humanitarian movement at present sweeping forward toward the goal of political freedom and social justice," and referred to the state's position in "the vanguard of a movement to uplift and dignify the common man, which he said is taking on world-wide significance and scope."

Some of the governor's principal recommendations are: Simplification of the income tax law, to render it more effective in administration; no radical change in the scope or character should be attempted nor further exemption of personal property be made.

A more flexible women and children's labor law to avoid undue harshness in its application.

Compensation Act Changes. Abolition of the defense of contributory negligence in the workmen's compensation act; application of the law to all employers unless they shall have filed objections to the course.

Abolition of the license fee method and substitution of the ad valorem system of taxing telephone companies.

Authority for a joint investigation by the board of control and state highway commission on the subject of convict labor in road work in northern Wisconsin; taxation of automobiles on a horsepower or weight basis.

Taxation of mineral deposits underground on same basis as standing timber is taxed; a general law for regulation of waterpowers with ultimate public ownership the goal; upbuilding of the forest reserve, and a better method of taxing timber and preservation of natural resources against erosion and weeds.

A minimum wage for women.

"Mothers' pensions," or aid to needy deserving mothers.

Abolition of prison contract labor at Waupun, and the granting or discretionary power of the board of control to employ convicts to the state's advantage.

To Protect Investors. Amendment to provide for deputies of the state board of control to relieve the overworked board of the inspection of county aid local institutions under its direction.

Enactment of "blue sky" law for the protection of investors against fraud through worthless stocks.

Settlement of farm lands through development of agricultural credit institutions; long time loans to lessen farm tenancy.

Absent voting, or "voting by mail," by citizens out of their home precincts on election day. The Kansas plan.

Final passage of the initiative, referendum and recall amendments.

Enactment of the board of public affairs' recommendations for improving the rural schools; establishment of a county board of education.

Larger funds for establishing vocational education.

Liberal support of university extension.

Agricultural co-operation, through co-operative marketing, improvement of credit facilities, etc.; enactment of agricultural co-operative credit; careful consideration of a proposed land colonization plan.

Legislation for anti-price discrimination statutes in the interest of lower cost of living.

Confidence in People. Approval of a state budget, the first in Wisconsin's history.

Rigid economy in legislative appropriations, in view of liberal state tax remissions.

Permanent organization of the state board of public affairs. After referring briefly to Wisconsin's high degree of prosperity, Governor McGovern concluded: "I have abundant confidence in the cause of popular government. It seeks the attainment only of a larger measure of freedom and justice for all men and is destined therefore to grow in favor day by day. All history is but a testimonial to its irresistible progress. Its hold upon the imagination of the average man is stronger now than ever before and it now more unmistakably sways the future. Everywhere special privilege and boss control are going the way of despotism in China and tyranny in the Balkan peninsula. Let us rejoice that this is so. Let us gladly look forward to the opportunity afforded us during the next two years for strengthening this tendency here at home, through disinterested patriotic labor in the service of the state."

MORALS AND HEALTH

TOPIC OF TALKS BY DR. MAUD WILLIAMS

Addresses High School Girls This Morning and Boys This Afternoon—Women's Mass Meeting Tonight.

Dr. Maud Williams of Milwaukee, who spent four weeks in Janesville during the latter part of 1911 in the interest of the anti-tuberculosis society, arrived in Janesville last night and will be here for the remainder of the week to give a series of talks on the subject of "Morals and Health."

At the high school this morning, Dr. Williams gave an address to the girls and at one o'clock this afternoon she talked to the boys. On both occasions she spoke simply, plainly and directly with no evasions whatever in regard to sex and sex problems as they confront the boys and girls of high school age.

She explained to both the boys and the girls the importance and necessity for purity and described the penalties which result from immoral actions. She appealed especially to the manhood and womanhood of the boys and girls, urging them to keep their bodies clean for their own sakes and for the sake of those whom they love and will love.

In talking to the boys this afternoon, Dr. Williams deprecated the habit of smoking as contracted by boys in school. "Any boy who is smoking while on the street in company with a girl is not a gentleman, nor does he care in any way for the girl," was one statement. "He might at least pay her the respect of not insulting her." Smoking was especially harmful, inasmuch as it leads to other temptations and vices which are much more serious and harmful, said Dr. Williams.

At eight o'clock this evening Dr. Williams will speak to a mass meeting of women over the age of eighteen years, at the high school assembly room. This address will be especially for mothers and teachers and a large audience is anticipated.

On Friday evening at eight o'clock, at the city hall, Dr. Williams will give an address to men, fathers especially, and on Sunday afternoon she will talk to girls and young ladies over sixteen years of age, at some place to be announced later.

As Dr. Williams speaks plainly and without evasion of the problems which she treats, her visit should be productive of much good toward moral purity and reform in this city. She was greeted with appreciative applause by the boys at the high school this afternoon and the strictest attention was given to her remarks.

OBITUARY.

James Rooney.

Requiem mass for James Rooney, the railway fireman killed in the wreck of a St. Paul train near Monticello, Monday night, was celebrated at St. Patrick's church at nine o'clock this morning by the Rev. Dean E. E. Reilly. The pall-bearers were Thomas Fox, Maurice McCarthy, Frank McCloskey, Edward Meehan, John Halley and James Sollinger. The pall-bearers accompanied the remains to Mineral Point where interment was made.

Andrew Waltring.

The remains of Andrew Waltring, who died at the county hospital last Monday, were buried in Oak Hill cemetery this morning. He was about fifty years old and not known to have left any relatives. He came to Rock county from Gratiot, LaPayette county.

MRS. I. R. SPENCER DIES AT FOOTVILLE

Aged Wife of Retired Footville Clergyman Passes Away After Five Years of Invalidism.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Footville, Wis., Jan. 9.—Mrs. Ellen Elizabeth Spencer, aged wife of Elder I. R. Spencer, retired clergyman, passed away last night at her home here after five years of invalidism during which she has never been out of her wheeled chair. Mrs. Spencer had suffered with dropsy and asthma but in spite of her condition had always been cheerful, patient and thoughtful.

She was born May 29, 1837 at Middlebury, Pa., and was married to I. R. Spencer Aug. 17, 1866. They moved to the town of Center from Illinois, about fifteen years ago and have made their home in the vicinity of Footville ever since with the exception of several years. Her husband was pastor of the local Christian church for a number of years but lately retired owing to his advanced age.

Mrs. Spencer was a devout Christian and a deeply revered and beloved woman. At no time during her life were her beautiful qualities of character more in evidence than during her recent illness. Her great unselfishness and thoughtful consideration made her at all times a staunch friend to those in trouble and sorrow. Death came to her quietly and peacefully and she passed away as a little child goes to sleep.

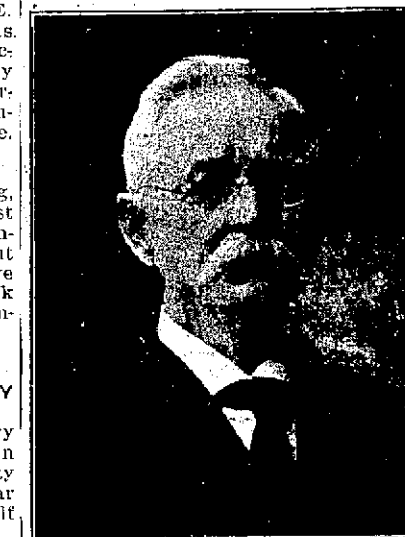

Besides her devoted husband she leaves three sons and two daughters: Mrs. Fred Bemis of Footville, and Miss Daisy Spencer, who lives at home; Carl Spencer of Lockport, Ill.; Elmer of Janesville; and Earl of Chicago.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at one o'clock from the Christian church, with the Rev. Van Vorhes of Janesville and Rev. Ambrose of this place officiating. Interment will be made in the Grove cemetery.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR DR. JAMES GIBSON.

Remains of Well Known Physician Were Laid to Rest in Oak Hill Cemetery Today.

Funeral services for Dr. James Gibson, the well known Janesville physician who passed away Monday afternoon, were conducted at the home of his sister, Mrs. E. G. Lowry, 213 Washington street, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. The Rev. Joseph C. Hazen pastor of the First Baptist church officiated. Those acting as pall bearers were Drs. W. H. Judd, Edward A. Loomis and A. L. Burdick. William and John McVicar and E. P. Drake. Interment was made in Oak Hill cemetery. The service in which the departed was held was manifested by the numerous floral tributes from friends and kin. The medical fraternity of the city was well represented at the funeral.

DR. J. B. RICHARDS.

The death of Dr. J. B. Richards at his home on East Milwaukee street, last week, removes one of the old physicians of the state. Dr. Richards came from Boston to LaCrosse in 1859 and since that time has resided in Wisconsin practicing his profession until advanced age compelled his retirement a year or so ago. Dr. Richards conducted a pharmacy at LaCrosse for twenty years. He also practiced medicine at Virgona and during the later years of his life, in Janesville. He graduated from Harvard Medical College in 1872.

MRS. WEBER WAS HOSTESS AT CARD PARTY YESTERDAY.

Mrs. Valentine Weber Entertained 500 Club at Her Home on Wisconsin Street.

Mrs. Valentine Weber entertained the 500 Club yesterday afternoon at her home on Wisconsin street. The first prize was won by Mrs. Fred Dixon and the second prize by Mrs. J. I. Burns. Refreshments were served during the afternoon, and after a pleasant afternoon they adjourned to meet next week on Tuesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. James York on Center avenue.

CONGREGATIONAL GIRLS' CLUB MET YESTERDAY.

C. C. Club Held Enjoyable Meeting in Church Parlors Yesterday Afternoon.

The C. C. Club met at the Congregational church yesterday afternoon at four o'clock. The young ladies filled in their afternoon by making scrap books and preparing good reading to be sent to the hospital and other places yesterday. Miss Marion Blodgett read a very interesting article on Early Italian pictures. This club meets every two weeks.

The talk was illustrated with postcard pictures of towns and palatines in Italy, thrown on a screen by a microscope.

FELL DOWN STAIRS WITH LAMP IN HAND

Rev. I. L. Cory Sustained Injuries to Back and Got Bad Shaking up and Fire Was Started in Home.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Clinton, Jan. 9.—Falling down stairs at his home early yesterday morning while he was carrying a lighted lamp in his hand, Rev. I. L. Cory, of this village, sustained injuries to his back and was badly shaken up by the fall, and the lamp, dropping from his hand as he fell, started a blaze which might have proved serious. Rev. Cory arose at half past eight yesterday morning, and started down the back stairs at his home, carrying in his hand an oil lamp. On the second step from the top his feet slipped and he fell, striking on his back. He slid to the bottom of the stairs and although stunned by the fall, had presence of mind enough to look for the lamp, which had slipped over his head and set fire to the stairs. The oil and set fire to the stairs and what might have resulted in a bad fire was started. Rev. Cory, by painful exertion, secured the lamp and threw it out of doors, and suppressed the blaze. He was able to be about yesterday afternoon, but his bruises caused him considerable pain.

The next and last number on the citizens' program course will be given by the Edwin Whitney Company Tuesday evening, Jan. 22, at the Baptist church.

The stockholders of the State Bank of Clinton held their first annual election of officers yesterday afternoon in Drake's hall. The following were elected as a board of directors: W. O. Newhouse, Janesville; A. J. Wilkins, P. R. Rogers, H. O. Gardner, H. S. Anderson and J. H. Gardner.

The board has not elected officers as yet, and made no appointments.

The Clinton high school boys will entertain the high school girls at the school building Friday evening, Jan. 10.

Mrs. O. H. Churchill of South Dakota is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. W. Wheeler.

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take one pint of granulated sugar, add 1/2 pint of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as you could buy.

If you will then put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cent bottle) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly.

And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—stops whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect, and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in quinine and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been imitated but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist is a Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

LESS ACTIVITY ON LIVESTOCK MARKET

Demand for Cattle and Hogs is Slower Today Although Prices Remained the Same.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Jan. 9.—There was little change in the prices on the local livestock market today, but the demand for cattle and hogs was perceptibly weaker. Receipts were not heavy which undoubtedly prevented a slump in the quotations. Sheep met a good demand with prices at Wednesday's average. The prices ranged as follows:

Cattle—Receipts 8,000; market slow, generally steady; beefs 5.90@6.40; steers 4.70@5.35; western steers 5.70@7.40; stockers and feeders 4.40@7.05; cows and heifers 2.35@7.50; calves 6.75@10.75.

CUT THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

W. H. Chapman, Winnebago, Neb., tells how he did it. "My two children had a very bad cough and doctor's medicines did them no good. I got a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, and before it was all used the children were free and cured of their cough. I saved a doctor's bill for one 25c bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound." A mean stuffy cold, with hoarse wheezy breathing is just the kind that runs into bronchitis or pneumonia. Don't trifle with such serious conditions but take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound promptly. Contains no opiates. Badger Drug Co.

LOUIS B. HANNA BECOMES NORTH DAKOTA'S GOVERNOR.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 8.—Republicans of North Dakota rallied here in force today for the inauguration of Governor Louis B. Hanna, and the other Republicans elected to State office last November. The new governor is well known in public life, having been a member of both branches of the North Dakota legislature, chairman of the Republican State committee for six years and a representative in Congress since 1909. He succeeds John Burke, Democrat, who has served three terms as governor and is now prominently mentioned among the possibilities for the Wilson cabinet.

SCHWITZAY CONSPICUOUS AMONG THE ASSEMBLYMEN

Former District Attorney and Sheriff at Marinette in Limelight at State Capital.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 9.—Among the conspicuous members of the assembly is Albert E. Schwitzay of Marinette. He is the militant former district attorney, who was disbanded a couple of years ago, and then ran for sheriff and swept the boards. Recently he came again into the limelight through a prosecution against him in Detroit, Michigan. It seems to be a common opinion among assemblymen that no official notice of Schwitzay's trial will be taken until the matter has been passed upon by a court of law.

"The people are generally for me," said Mr. Schwitzay today. "The papers are generally against me, but I don't pay much attention to the papers."

QUININE? NO! PAPE'S BEST FOR BAD COLD

First Dose of Pape's Cold Compound Relieves All Misery From a Cold of the Grippe.

It is a positive fact that a dose of Pape's Cold Compound, taken every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken, will end the Grippe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach, limbs or any part of the body.

It promptly relieves the most miserable headache, dizziness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges. Take this wonderful Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is nothing else in the world, which will cure your cold or end your misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist can supply—accept no substitute—contains no quinine. Belongs in every home. Tastes nice—acts gently.

Sport Snap Shots

By Dan McCoy

When Josh Devore first broke into big league company as a member of the New York Giants, relates Joe Tinker, he was fast on his feet, but slow with regard to table manners. Josh's first meal on the big line was taken with two other members of the Giants. All the boys ordered soup, and the waiter brought the three portions in a large tureen, which he set down in front of Devore. The three soup plates were piled one on top of the other, and also placed in front of Josh. The little outfielder cast a look around and then picked up the big ladle and began to eat his soup out of the tureen. Looking at his fellow players, with an air of pride, he said: "Well, I guess these folks here don't know I'm a busher. I'm the only one they've served the soup to. You fellows had better call that buy back and get him to fill your orders."

The fight game is Michigan will be squelched soon if Governor Ferris who has just gone into office, has his way. "I am opposed to prize fighting—unalterably opposed to it," was one of the governor's first declarations after going into office. "I stand for every clean, manly sport, and all real athletics, but prize fighting is not to be included in this list. If I find violations of the law going unnoticed I shall take pains to see that the law is enforced."

The training trip of the big league ball teams is becoming more of a scientific proposition every year. In the olden days almost any southern town was good enough. Now water, air and food conditions are the cause of much study by managers.

A big feature of the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco in 1915, will be two meetings for light harness horses. The first will be held early in the season and will be mainly for coast horses. Later the American Association of Trotting Horse Breeders will have complete control of the meeting.

The next heavyweight bout of importance will probably be a clash between Luther McCarty and Tommy Burns, from whom Jack Johnson won the championship. Burns has announced that he is back in the game. He figures that he is entitled to a chance against the white heavies, and no doubt will get it.

Probably no patron of the turf ever lived who won so much money with his race horses as did the late James R. Keene. In the 33 years he was connected with the sport his racing colors, white with blue spots, flashed home first in all the turf classics of America, England and France, with the exception of the English derby. There was scarcely a big racing event in existence that his horses had not won some time or other. During his long career as breeder and owner his

FIRST AND SECOND TEAMS WILL PLAY

Basketball Fives of High School Will Clash After School Friday Afternoon.

There will be a basketball game on Friday afternoon at the close of school between the first and second teams of the high school in the high school gymnasium. The game will be called at four-thirty and a good game is assured. The teams are in fine shape and the seconds will make their competitors run for a victory. Alwood and Dalton will probably start the forward positions, with Hemmings at center and Eiler and Capt. Filler at guards. The second five is not picked as yet, as there is a world of material to pick from. The game with the alumni could not be arranged for this week, but a game is scheduled for next Wednesday night after supper. The Lakota Cardinals have a hard game on Saturday night of this week and so consequently refused to play this Friday. The rink team composed the alumni aggregation.

ROLLER POLO TEAM PLAYS FIRST GAME ON JANUARY 24

Kenosha Team Will Play in This City, Game with Rockford Having Been Cancelled.

The first game of the Janesville roller polo team will be played in this city on January 24 with the team from Kenosha, according to announcement made today by Manager John L. Snyder. Rockford, according to the schedule arranged in Milwaukee, was to have played here on the sixteenth of the month, but the contest has been cancelled as the Rockford team is in no shape to play. The local team will hold its first practice tonight if the rest of their equipment arrives as expected.

Skaters of Rockford. Two carloads of roller skating enthusiasts, and possibly three, will go to Rockford next Tuesday night to attend the roller rink there. The party will leave this city at six o'clock.

SAY ACT WILL MEAN FEWER DEPENDENTS

Friend of Mothers' Pension Bill Predict Important Benefits—Opposition Is Seen

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Jan. 9.—Friends of the mother's pension bill believe that if this law is passed by the legislature about half of the number of children now sent to the home for dependent children at Sparta will be kept at home and educated. The Wisconsin bill proposes a state wide application. It will be so safeguarded as to prevent delinquency with frequent reports that will show that the money provided is properly used.

Unlike the law in some of the other states there will be a section devoted to the subject of truancy. Children of the widow, who are old enough to attend school, must be in regular attendance and a copy of their monthly record in school, showing attendance and standings shall be certified to the judge or officer under whose direction the subsidy was granted.

There will be opposition to the mother's pension bill. It is said that some of the charity organizations of the state believe that the present plan is effective and that needy cases can be cared for by private charities. Friends of the measure hope to have Judge Edward Everett Porterfield of Kansas City, Mo., the framers of the first bill of that character passed in this country appear before the legislature in favor of the measure.

The Missouri law, which was signed by Governor Herbert S. Hadley on April 7, 1911 provides for the partial support of poor women whose husbands are dead or convicts when such women are mothers of children under the age of fourteen years. Six months after the first mothers' pension was granted in Kansas City, the funds for the Parents' Act became operative in Cook County, Ill. This act, although it does not apply to convicts' wives is broader in scope than the Missouri bill, because it includes, besides widows, the wives of insane and women whose husbands are neither dead nor insane, but constitutionally unfit to provide for their families. A committee of five passes on all applications and assigns probation officers to investigate. Only children under fourteen years of age are eligible for consideration, and not more than $10 a month for each child may be secured. The Wisconsin bill will provide for a monthly report from a probation officer, who is to look after the applicant.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 9.—The third session of the thirteenth Manitoba legislature assembled today and was opened with the customary formalities. PROHIBITION PARTY MAY TAKE NEW NAME

Proposal One of Matters to be Considered at National Conference of Party Leaders in Indianapolis

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 9.—A proposal to change the name of the Prohibition party is one of the important matters that will be considered and acted upon at the big national conference of the party leaders to be held in this city early next week. Many of the leaders have expressed themselves in favor of a change in the party designation. The advocates of the proposal argue that the word "prohibition" does not convey the full meaning of the party's purposes. It is pointed out that the present name conveys to the average mind only one idea, the prohibition of the liquor traffic, whereas the party for years has been standing for many of the most important progressive principles which only recently have been taken up by the other political parties. Virgil G. Hinshaw, of Chicago, the national chairman, is among those of the opinion that a change in name would result in increasing the numerical strength of the party.

The conference here next week will be attended by the members of the national committee, state chairmen and many other prominent leaders. The recent national campaign and its results will be exhaustively considered with a view to agreeing upon changes in methods for future campaigns. Ways and means for strengthening the party will be discussed. It is likely that the Minnesota plan of making a house-to-house canvass will be adopted for the entire country.

DEMOCRAT SUCCEEDS BOURNE AS SENATOR

Oregon Legislature, Though Overwhelmingly Republican, Must Comply With Voters Preference

Salem, Ore., Jan. 9.—Although the Oregon legislature, which will convene here next Monday, will be overwhelmingly republican, it will be compelled, in compliance with the state law which provides for the direct election of United States senators, to name Harry Lane, a Democrat, as the successor of Jonathan Bourne, Jr., in the United States senate. At the fall election, when the voters registered their preference for the senatorship, Dr. Lane was the Democratic choice and polled more votes than the other candidates, Ben Selling, the Republican nominee, and Jonathan Bourne, Jr., who made an eleventh-hour start in the race as an independent.

Some historic interest attaches to the election of Dr. Lane as United States senator from Oregon, since he is a grandson of General Joseph Lane, who was Oregon's first territorial governor, one of her first senators and a candidate for Vice President of the United States on the Breckinridge ticket in 1860.

PRESIDENT TAFT.

It is perhaps true that no good man in public life was ever more bitterly maligned than the retiring president. His motives have been impugned and his character traduced to such extent that his name became a by-word. Through all this abuse President Taft has maintained a dignified silence. As time advances the nation will appreciate the greatness of the man who suffered defeat last November, and history will deal more kindly with him than the generation which he served so faithfully.

His address, at the Waldorf, last Saturday night, where he was the guest of honor at which he termed "his own wake," contained some remarkable passages, showing the grasp of mind and the clear comprehension of the citizen and statesman. The following paragraph is characteristic of the man.

"I have had so much to do with actual government in the administration of justice, in the working out and building up of a government, as in the Philippines, and in trying to make a government better in Washington, that I cannot join in the glowing promise that government action can remedy all of the evils of poverty, sin, disease and ignorance as set forth in the prospectuses of an ambitious political party."

No man in the nation is better qualified to judge of the law and its limitations. He tested its efficiency when governor of our insular possessions, and he has been in the thick of the fight in Washington during a period when everybody was clamoring for law and regulation. The Wall Street Journal makes the following comments on the paragraph. They are well worth reading.

"This is the truth, and points the everlasting lesson that no government can be better than the governed. It is at best merely an instrument for the enforcement of the law, for the protection of the individual in person and property. It is not a philanthropy agency. It cannot protect the individual against himself, except in a most restricted way. All it can do is to secure that measure of equal opportunity for all men which is the ideal of good government, and leave the individual to work out his own salvation."

"Differing in many respects, the prohibitionist, the socialist and the progressive are alike in one. Their doctrine is all postulated in the theory that it is possible to make men different by the mere passage of statutes through congress or the state legislatures. They learn nothing from history. They do not realize that a restrictive law, which is merely the expression of the opinion of a minority, however virtuous and high-minded, ceases to have effect unless it has overwhelming public opinion behind it. It becomes not merely a dead letter, but an active instrument of blackmail and oppression, as every student of government, municipal, state and federal, must realize."

"Mr. Taft has stated the principal reason why only Congress can reform itself; only Wall Street can reform itself; only Tammany Hall can reform itself; and why, in the last analysis, no reform of any value can be achieved which does not start with the individual. Our reformative agencies have tried to do too much. Our well-meaning Christian Temperance ladies have extended the consumption of bad rum and promoted the dissemination of syphilitic diseases, through the abolition of the army canteen. The mischief they have done has been trifling in comparison with the short-sighted efforts of reformers elsewhere, who attempted to ameliorate conditions from the top instead of from the bottom."

"This is not a problem for our politicians, or for any agency of government, but rather for ministers of religion and for teachers of all kinds, in schools and in public press. Every serious statesman knows that the legislative remedies have been greatly worse than the diseases they profess to cure. In his frank statement of the case, Mr. Taft leaves a valuable legacy behind him."

WOMEN PEARL DIVERS.

Pearl-oysters are found at a depth of from five to thirty fathoms. Women who are employed for the work dive to the bottom without any special apparatus, and retain their breath when under water. They disdain the use of weights to help them in their descent, and can remain below the surface from one to two minutes—in a few instances as long as three minutes—without experiencing any ill effects. In the cold weather they will dive for an hour and the return to shore and warm themselves at the fires specially built for this purpose, resuming their work again after partaking of a frugal meal of rice and fish. The divers range in age from thirteen to forty years. It has been found, however, that those from twenty-five to thirty-five make the best workers, because of their physical strength and experience. Some of these women will bring to the surface a score, or even fifty, oysters in a minute from a depth of thirteen fathoms. Partly to realize what this means you have only to lie at the bottom of a six-foot-deep swimming bath while you count sixty, and then remember that these women stay at the same length of time, and more, at twelve or thirteen times that pressure and depth, busily working with their hands the whole while.

The hours of labor vary with the seasons. In warm weather about six to eight hours constitute a day's work, and at this time of the year three divers have been known to collect a thousand oysters between them. In very cold weather the women cannot work for more than one or two hours. The wages paid range from twelve to fifty cents a day; the highest ever paid is a dollar and a quarter. Astonishing as it may sound, some of the women manage to save considerable sums, largely because the cost of living is so low. Some of the younger girls endeavor to earn their marriage dowry by diving.

The Wide World magazine contains this very interesting account of a Japanese industry, in which women are largely employed. The occupation is so strenuous that it does not look very inviting to American women. The endurance displayed is a compliment to any race. The pearl oyster is now being successfully cultivated in Japan.

The friends of McGovern claim a victory for the governor, in the election of Hull for speaker, while the shouters for La Follette are satisfied to call it a victory for the senator. The governor is quite confident that he is the only governor that the state has just now, and there has never been any doubt about the status of our only senator. The fight on the speakership was a progressive fight, and was the first skirmish in the winter's campaign. With both factions bent on reform there is likely to be something doing.

The state will be able to worry along without the aid of ex-insurance Commissioner Biern, and the insurance companies will not mourn his departure. If he is responsible for foisting on the state the new life insurance company, he should be permitted to take it away with him. The $50,000 which it costs to run it, can be better invested in something else. The capitol needs a few more $40,000 cupids, and the university may want to buy another farm.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has made a grave mistake in criticizing the judge who sentenced the convicted dynamite conspirators, and claiming that the men had a grievance which in a measure warranted radical action. While Gompers may not represent the sentiment of organized labor, the position which he occupies makes it embarrassing for the organization. The nation is suffering for lack of law enforcement and we are rapidly developing into a lawless people.

New York merchants are complaining about the zone distinctions of the parcels post. The local zone includes Staten Island and all the suburbs within twelve miles, except the city of Brooklyn, which has its own post office. Here the rates on the fifty mile zone rate apply, and express rates are cheaper. It is to be expected that discrepancies of this kind will occur. In the meantime the express companies are arranging to meet competition, and shippers will be benefited by lower rates.

WM. LOEB TO JOIN GUGGENHEIM'S SOON

Wm. Loeb, Jr.

Wm. Loeb, Jr., who was private secretary to Roosevelt during the latter's administration and who was made collector of the port of New York by President Taft, is to quit his post with the government soon and work for the Guggenheim interests. It is said Loeb's present salary of $12,000 a year will be largely increased.

At Least Knew His Value.

A native, named Appu, of Kothanah, Ceylon, recently attacked his father and mother with a mallet while they were asleep, and nearly killed them. The excuse he subsequently gave was that he was disgusted with his "miserable parents for having such a low-down son."

W. R. Fox, 195 W. Washington St., Noblesville, Ind., says: "After suffering many months with kidney trouble, after trying other remedies and prescriptions, I purchased a box of Foley Kidney Pills which not only did me more good than any other remedies I ever used, but have positively set my kidneys right. Other members of my family have used them with similar results." You will save time and money, and avoid needless pain and suffering by taking Foley Kidney Pills at the first sign of kidney trouble. Try them. Refuse any substitute. Dagher Drug Co.

WHICH IS THE GREATER ROBBER?

THE FARMER WHO ROBS HIS SOIL, OR THE MAN WHO ROBS THE COMMUNITY.

By Thomas J. Sullivan, Copyrighted 1912, by National Business Publicity Association.

In these days of advanced scientific farming, the farmer who robs his soil, has become very unpopular among his neighbors. The agricultural press has for years exerted its influence in an effort to stop the soil robber.

The high grade successful farmer is the farmer who increases rather than diminishes the fertility of his land. Every year he changes his crop with that one object in view. He subscribes for and reads very carefully, the agricultural reports, paying particular attention to the reports on experiments made by advanced and progressive farmers.

Why he does this is plain. He knows very well that it would be useless to plant good seed in worn out soil. It is his wish and intention to make a profit on the investment in seed and labor as well as in soil, and this of course, could not be accomplished if the soil were not fruitful.

These are all plain and evident truths, are they not? We would ask why this very same farmer who would be insulted were he charged with neglecting to keep his soil enriched to the highest possible degree, explain how he can deliberately rob his community by buying his goods from out of town concerns?

The farmer plants seed in the soil and in order to produce results he must keep that soil fertilized. Being himself planted in the community, he does his trading in a foreign city, and thereby assists his community in becoming poor.

Why should this farmer have greater respect for the seed which he plants than he has for himself, his family, or his neighbor?

There is a community in Wisconsin, in the center of which is a city, embracing about 10,000 people, and it is conservatively estimated that something more than $300,000 annually is sent out of town to mail order houses for the purchase of goods which could just as well be secured at home.

This estimation is based on the figures secured from reliable sources in the fore mentioned community, that is, from the banker, express agent, and postmaster.

This perhaps is the strongest evidence possible of "robbing" a community.

The answer to the above may be that a man has a right to buy where he pleases. It is his money he is spending, and he has the right to send it away if he wishes, particularly if he feels that he is to be the gainer thereby.

Quite true; in this glorious America of ours every citizen is privileged to consult his own pleasures in spending his money. He can spend it or hoard it up, or he may contribute it for the purpose of building monuments to the memory of great men. No one can lawfully dispute that right.

Likewise, the soil robber has the right to use his land as he wishes, and without any consideration for its future fertility. The land belongs to him and he can do as he pleases with it. He is a free man surrounded by hundreds of laws enacted for the protection of his rights.

After he has converted a once fruitful soil into a barren waste he is ready to sell, and move to parts where there is said to be rich virgin soil that can be had very cheap, and this is what the land robber invariably does. That also is his privilege.

The parallel drawn between the two cases has a tendency to give the community robber a chance to pause and consider. He should give the matter serious attention and thought, and endeavor to figure out a method by which he can by co-operating with the public spirited citizens of his community aid in increasing its wealth just as the honest farmer increases the richness and productivity of his soil. In this way only can a large and substantial community be attained.

A good local market is necessary to every community if it is to prosper.

Italics First Used by Venetian.

Italics were first used about A. D. 1500 by Manutius, a Venetian printer, who dedicated them to the Italian states. Hence the name. The first book set up in italics was an edition of Vergil printed at Venice by Aldus in 1501. A copy of this rare book is preserved in the British museum.

CHARLTON HAS NEW PLAN FOR LIBERTY.

Porter Charlton.

Porter Charlton, an American who murdered his wife in Italy in 1910 and escaped to America, since which time he has been in a New York jail, has a new plan for his liberty. He has a new plan for his release on the ground that the United States should not return criminals to Italy, as Italy refuses to send fugitives from America justice back to this country even when they are in the possession of the Italian authorities. His latest move is the announcement that he has tuberculosis and can not live long. This report, he hopes, will result in the greatest leniency being shown him.

Map in the Nursery.

I have discovered that a large map of the United States hanging in the nursery, or where the children can see it, is a great educator. A map of your own state also, showing counties, townships, capitals, etc., will also help all the family to know more practical geography than may be studied in books. It is a good idea to consult both maps frequently with the children, to look up any strange towns read about in the paper. It teaches them to know their own country, state, city, etc.—Harper's Bazar.

Afternoon and evening
Friday, Jan. 10.

Capt. Scott's Expedition
To the

SOUTH POLE

Made by authority of the London Geographical Society for Historical and Research Purposes. These pictures, taken in that far-off and mysterious country of eternal ice and snow, are without a doubt the crowning event in the art of motion photography. You are transported to the very edge of the South Pole. Every scene will fill you with wonder and awe at the beauty and vastness of this country, where ice is, and always will be reigning monarch. You will see for the first time in Moving Pictures the Setting of the Midnight Sun and that great unspanned waste of ice the Great Ice Barrier which will be shown in all its grandeur and massiveness.

1912 Gave Me The Largest Dental Practice of All The Past Eleven Years In Janesville.

And this in the face of the fiercest competition a man ever had.

I keep free from any price agreement with other dentists, and so am not compelled on my honor to charge $10 for gold crowns.

I can furnish an honest heavy pure 22K gold crown for one-half that price.

And then also I now am able to so numb the facial nerves that there is absolutely no pain to the patient while I drill and fill the worst of teeth.

For this painless work there is an extra charge, but I find most people willing to pay a little extra to escape the former agony of the dental chair.

When you come in, ask me for the painless work, and you will get it.

PREVAILING MILD WEATHER MAKES STOVE TRADE SLOW

Janesville's Dealers' Trade Affected Adversely—Condition Holds Throughout Country.

The prevalence of mild weather throughout the country thus far is reported to have resulted in a very light demand for heating stoves. Janesville hardware dealers report that few stoves have been sold this winter compared with last, although there has been a strong demand for second-hand stoves. Many families will attempt to get through the winter with an old and inefficient stove if the weather is mild, but if very cold weather sets in early they are obliged to buy new heating equipment. One dealer stated that his sales were double that of last year, although he admitted that the mild weather of the early winter was detrimental to business.

RECEIVING ENTRIES FOR POULTRY SHOW

EVERY CLASS WILL BE WELL REPRESENTED ACCORDING TO PRESENT INDICATIONS.

BIRDS OF HIGH MERIT

Including Several Pairs Shown at Madison Square Garden and Other Big Exhibitions, Will Be Entered.

Entries for the fifth annual exhibition of the Southern Wisconsin Poultry association are fast being received by Secretary F. H. Green. Indications at present are that the show will be the largest and finest ever held in Janesville and will outclass any other show in the state in size and quality. "There is no doubt that the show this year will outrank any previous attempt of the kind in this city," said a prominent member of the association today. "Our exhibition far outshines the Milwaukee show at every thing except the pigeons, which is a branch to which we have paid very little attention."

"At our show next week there will be several pairs of birds that were shown at Madison Square Garden during the past week. In addition there will be a number of fowls that took prizes at Chicago and other big shows."

According to the rules of the show, as printed in the premium list, entries will close tomorrow night. Friday will be the big day for receiving entries and the secretary and his assistants will be very busy listing the birds that will compete for the excellent prizes offered by the association.

It is possible that an extension of time to Saturday afternoon will be arranged in order to accommodate some of the fanciers who have been showing at other shows and others who live at some distance and who have been late in securing premium lists. The majority of the exhibits will be listed tomorrow, however.

On Monday the auditorium will be ready for the reception of the fowls. The coops will be placed Sunday afternoon and every matter will be attended to in order to avoid all possible delays. No stock will be received for exhibition later than Tuesday noon but every bird should be placed on Monday, if possible. The association furnishes the coops, which are of the best style for show purposes.

"Every class of birds will be well represented," said a prominent fancier today. "Of course the American varieties, such as the Rocks and Rhode Island Reds will be the favorites and will outnumber most of the other breeds, but there will be keen competition among the rarer birds."

The management has been gratified that a larger number of farmers than ever before have entered birds at the show and some have expressed the desire to become members of the association.

It is estimated that 1,200 fowls, mainly chickens, will be shown next week. This is several hundred more than was seen here last year.

Canaries Worth $125.
A feature of the show, it was announced today, will be the exhibition of two imported St. Andrews canaries, valued at $125 and $130 respectively. These two birds, day and night songsters were on exhibition at the Auditorium Poultry Show, Milwaukee, and were the "hit" of the show. The exhibit will be of interest to all bird lovers and the public at large.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Furnace Fire Choked: The fire department was called to the Wisconsin Telephone Company building at about six o'clock yesterday morning by a fire alarm. The firemen found a lot of smoke but no fire except in the steam-heating plant. The furnace of the steam-heating boiler had been filled with coal of such quality that the fire was choked off and smoke was forced out through the building.

Fined $3 and Costs: George Larson, a wood-cutter, was fined three dollars and costs by Judge Field in the municipal court this morning after pleading guilty to having been intoxicated. Larson came to town with a friend and assistant in his business but what he found assisted him into the wrong place.

Unique Club Attention: All whist players requested to be at the club by 8 o'clock tonight, Thursday, Jan. 9th.

One Divorce Granted: Cruelty and non-support were the grounds for a divorce granted by Judge Grimm in the circuit court today to Clara M. Larson from her husband, Ira J. Larson, both of this city. The custody of the minor children and a certain amount of alimony were included in the judgment for the plaintiff. The defendant was represented by an attorney but made no defense.

PERIOD FOR RECEIPT OF TAXES HALF OVER

Sum of $60,881.40 Has Been Paid to City Treasurer in Real Estate and Personal Property Taxes.

With the period for the collection of taxes half over, the sum of $60,881.40, not one-third of the total amount to be raised by taxation, $207,672.43—has been received by the city treasurer, and out of the 3,500 odd persons assessed, not more than 1,075 had paid their taxes up to last night. Payments of taxes averaged about fifty a day during this period and will have to average about seventy a day until February 1st if the collections are to be completed by that time. This means that the city treasurer and his help, who have been kept bustling caring for the collections up to this time, will have nearly fifty per cent more work to do duty up to the end of the month. There are always, however, a fraction of the tax payers who fail to make their payments in January and will have to pay the penalty of two per cent on tardy collections.

The income tax promises to yield but little revenue to the city this year, not more than $3,593.32 cash having been paid in as yet. The bulk of the income tax from this source is made up of a few exceptionally large payments; the remainder coming in sums of a very few dollars and less than a dollar. The figure given represents the amount actually received by the city, the sum remaining after deducting the amount of offset for payment of personal property taxes from the income tax assessed.

OBTAINING SIGNERS TO RECALL PAPERS

Promoters Proceeding Carefully in Order to Avoid Former Pitfalls—Hopeful of Success.

Promoters of the recall movement are quietly circulating new petitions for the purpose of obtaining the requisite number of signatures, taking particular care to avoid the pitfalls encountered by the former petitions. Only those known to be qualified voters are being signed, and consequently slower progress is being made. One optimistic promoter stated that enough signatures to call for an election had been obtained up to last Saturday night, but this assertion is not generally credited. As a matter of public interest the recall has taken a decided slump. Little discussion of it is heard on the streets and in public meeting places and it is becoming increasingly difficult to arouse interest for its support. Among those reported as circulating the new petitions are Frank Sutherland, John Kennedy, Daniel Wilkins, and John Sheridan.

GOES ROUND THE WORLD TO SECURE THE SIGNATURES

Settlement of An Estate Causes Documents to Be Sent to Far-off Countries.

H. A. Each signer of the document had to do so before a notary public, one at Leith and one at Lerwick, Scotland, and the third at Ladybrand, Orange Free State, South Africa. The seals and method of procedure makes the document a most interesting one. The estate is valued at something over two thousand dollars and the fourth heir, James N. Smith, lives in Iowa.

AN INVITATION

Is extended to the public to attend the big Poultry Show at the Auditorium, Jan. 13-18. The entry list is larger than other years, hundreds of the best bred birds in the country will be on exhibition, and keen competition in all classes is anticipated. Judges Keeler and Roberts, known nation wide as poultry authorities, will have charge of the scoring.

The Show Opens Monday, Jan. 13, and Closes Saturday, Jan. 18. Everybody is Invited to Attend.

Eggs, Eggs, Eggs.

Eggs for everybody. During the months of January and February, we have plenty of fresh eggs for table use. After March 1st we have plenty of eggs, from our many varieties, for hatching. Our prices are the lowest, for quality eggs, from the best strains in this country. See our exhibit at the Poultry Show and judge for yourself, the quality of our birds. We will also have on exhibition the Norwich Automatic Exerciser and Feeder, the greatest labor and food-saver, among the desirable articles for the care of poultry. It pays for itself many times over each year, in the saving of food, and will last a lifetime. We have the exclusive agency for the northwest, and have been unable to furnish them, as fast as orders have come in. Try one, and if not right in every way, return it, and get your money back. We have also taken the agency for the Close-to-Nature grain sprouter, and have exclusive agency for this territory. The grain sprouter furnishes green food all winter, fresh every day, at an expense of about 10c per bushel, with oats at the present price. In other words one bushel of oats makes three bushels of the very best green food for poultry. It will double your egg supply in thirty days. We use both these articles on our poultry farm, and find them very valuable articles, paying large profits over the old methods. Always remember, we never offer for sale, any article, that is not tested out thoroughly on our own plant, and has proven to us a money maker and the best articles of the kind made. Before we took the agency for the Norwich Feeder and Close-to-Nature grain sprouter, we thoroughly investigated every kind made, then gave them a practical test, now offer our experience to you free. The motto of

WOMAN'S PAGE

SNAPSHOTS
BY BARBARA BOYD

One Rich Girl's Trouble

HE was a very pretty girl, but there was no vanity or selfishness in her face. Rather there was sensitiveness, idealism and earnestness. Both in her dress and her conversation, she showed, quite unconsciously, that she was accustomed to wealth and luxury. Life seemed to have been very good to her. Or rather, she seemed to have entered into her heritage of good, which life has for all of us, but which so many of us seem to miss.

But there was a fly in her ointment. There was a little cloud on the horizon that threatened to overcast her years with gloom. She wanted to go into social settlement work and be a nurse among the poor. And her parents would not let her. And there the matter stood, a small source of irritation as yet, but festering.

This was what that sensitiveness, that dreaminess, that purpose of her face meant. She could not be happy in the butterfly existence planned for her by her parents. But they could only regard with horror the idea of their beautiful, carefully reared daughter, going into the vice and disease and uncleanness of the slums, and giving her life to work there. They would not consent to it. And so they bought her pretty clothes, and took her traveling, and sent her to dances, and lived in the hope that soon Prince Charming would appear and put all such nonsense out of her head.

But were these parents doing right? Her very nature called for this work. Had they the right to thwart her desires, to make her life what they wanted it to be, but which was not an expression of herself?

They had the old-fashioned notion that society and marriage are sufficient to fill a girl's life. They could not get the viewpoint, held by so many girls today, that love has its place in life, but is not by any means the whole of life, that in addition to love, they want a share in the struggle of life, an active and useful part in the onward march of things. "Love is looked on by women today," says a modern writer, "as a hors d'oeuvre, and they want substantial food." This is exactly the attitude of many an educated, thinking girl. And whenever this view comes up against the old-time notion that love should be the all of a woman's life, it breeds trouble.

And so this girl, despite all the material good that life had given her, was sorrowful. And her parents were sorrowful. And if in time she yields to their wishes, for she is loving and dutiful, she will always feel that her life is purposeless and more or less of a failure.

Yet if they would concede to her the right which is justly hers, to live her life as she desires, the very experience might show her that, after all, her truest happiness was to be found within the home. She might discover that this work she longs to do was not after all what she wanted. And then her home life would be completely happy and contented. She would have killed the demon of desire which, until it is slain, destroys all contentment.

And at any rate, she has the right to seek the true expression of herself. She would be no less dutiful and loving in the home because she sought this work outside of it. But she would be giving the life within her its true expression. And this is the right of life. To try to thwart it only brings trouble. When its rightful course is stopped, it breaks out in ways not intended, or gradually dries up, and there is a barren plain where might have been a fruitful valley.

Barbara Boyd.

The Evening Chit-Chat
BY RUTH CAMERON.

WHEN COMPARISONS ARE ODIOUS.

WHEN in Rome do as the Romans do," is one of the old proverbs whose invariable wisdom I have sometimes doubted, but I am glad it exists, because it gives me a foundation for a new proverb of my own—"When in Rome, don't run Rome down."

A thoroughly charming woman from a distant part of the country has been visiting in our neighborhood for the last few weeks. That is, we all thought her thoroughly charming the first time we met her. Later several of us modified our opinions and at least left out the "thoroughly," if we didn't actually eliminate the "charming." For sooner or later with all of us, our visitor seized an opportunity to compare our section of the country with the corner from which she came. And needless to say, the comparison was not in our favor.

Our climate—always the first topic of discussion—and our diet, our amusements and our newspapers, our shade trees and our morals, our architecture and our dispositions, our clothes and our time of going to bed and getting up, were all compared with the vastly superior condition of things that prevailed in that part of the world whence she came.

In other matters she appeared to be a person of taste and tact, but somehow in this one thing she seemed to have lost all sense of courtesy or modesty.

Now this girl is an extreme example, but I have known a great many people who have this habit in some degree. They would never think of boasting about their own personal attainments, or belittling other people in comparison with themselves, and yet they are always making an opportunity to praise up their homeland at the expense of that corner of the world where the other fellow lives.

To my mind there is only one habit in worse taste, and that is to run down your own home. The jingoism of the American abroad is deservedly condemned by our more cultured countrymen; and even though we laugh at the "man from home," who, when confronted with the most beautiful architecture in Europe only says, "But you ought to see the Town Hall in Kokomo," we must admit that this sort of thing is in bad taste. Nevertheless I don't think the very worst case of genuine jingoism is half so bad as the perverted jingoism of the disloyal American who is always running down his own country. The jingoist lacks taste and discretion; the traitor lacks heart and human feeling.

However, one need not choose between these two extremes because one need not go to either. There is, as always, a golden mean between them. When in Rome don't run Rome down or your own country either. Neither is necessary nor in good taste, and neither will really endear you to your host.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS
BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please give me a recipe for apple pie.

READER.

Here is one that is a little different and very good: Make thick apple sauce, sweeten with sugar, season with nutmeg. Add pinch of salt and half a teaspoon of melted butter. Make a rich pie crust and bake it, then fill with the apple sauce, cover with whipped cream and serve. Or you can cover with a meringue and brown it in the hot oven.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man of 17. During the summer I had been going with a girl of our town, but lately I quit. One day a girl from a neighboring town came here on a visit. I took her downtown to the moving picture show. When on the street this former girl friend of mine met me and called me down right before my company. It made me feel cheap and I disdained her from then on. Did she do the right thing? Should I go back to her? BERYL.

The girl was very inconsiderate. You will probably be happier if you are not very close friends with her. Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a girl of 16 and have a boy friend of 19 who thinks much of me and will not go out with other girls, so I will think well of him, but do not know he likes me. I like him very much, but people talk about him so that I am afraid if I go with him I will disgrace myself. He is highly educated for his age. Please advise me. (2)—What is good for a cold on the lungs? (3)—Tell your mother all about it, my dear, and tell her to ask your father to find out if what people say about the boy is true. If it is of course you will not want to go with him at all. (2)—See a doctor at once. Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a married woman of 23. Is it proper for a young man to come and stay all day when my husband is working? How can I tell him to stay away without insulting him? (2)—Please tell me how to treat a child when he is saucy; with the whip or talk to him? (3)—What is good for making the hands white?

ANXIOUS WIFE.

(1) It isn't right at all. Tell him frankly that though you are sure he means no harm you cannot afford to risk your reputation by letting him stay there, and that he must find some other place to stay while your husband is gone.

(2)—Don't whip him if you can help it. If he is old enough to understand, tell him how unmanly it is to be saucy. If he keeps on, punish him by not letting him do anything he particularly likes, or put him to bed, even if it is in the middle of the day. Insist kindly that he speak to you respectfully and show by your own example how to be courteous to everybody. It will take patience and firmness on your part. Ask your husband to help you, when he is home. He will probably be glad to.

(3)—Mix five cents worth of glycerine, ten cents worth of witch hazel, the juice of one lemon and five cents worth of benzoin. Rub a little of it into the hands each time after washing.

The KITCHEN CABINET

HOW me the plan, great Builder of my life? Nay, anxious soul, Thou art not strong nor wise enough yet To see the whole."

A FEW UNUSUAL RECIPES.

Most of us know and have prepared pigs in blankets—that is bacon wrapped in a small piece of steak, browned in fat and then simmered in a little water—but this German dish, although similar, is one quite unusual:

Cut pieces of well-pounded round steak, cut thin, in pieces about five inches wide; salt and pepper well, lay a slice of pickle, a slice of onion and a strip of bacon on each piece and roll it up. Brown in a little fat, add a bay leaf and enough water to simmer for an hour or two. Be sure that the meat is either skewered or tied with a string. If the meat is rolled or dusted with flour the gravy is slightly thickened.

Chocolate Cookies.—Take a cupful of brown sugar, one-half cup of butter, one cup of sour milk, one egg and one-half teaspoonful of soda. Melt two squares of chocolate, add one and a half cups of flour, a half cup of raisins, a half cup of nuts and mix well. Mix and drop by teaspoonfuls on buttered pans.

Bran Muffins.—These are good for people troubled with constipation, and are often recommended by physicians. Beat an egg and add a pinch of salt, then a half cup of molasses, a cup of milk, two cups of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Mix well and bake twenty minutes to half an hour. This makes a dozen muffins.

Peanut Butter Fudge.—Put two cups of brown sugar and two-thirds of a cup of milk in a granite sauce pan, set over the fire and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Boil until a little dropped in cold water will form a soft ball, then add four tablespoonfuls of peanut butter; stir until the butter is melted, then beat until creamy. Add a teaspoon of vanilla and a third of a cup of sultana raisins.

Nellie Maxwell.

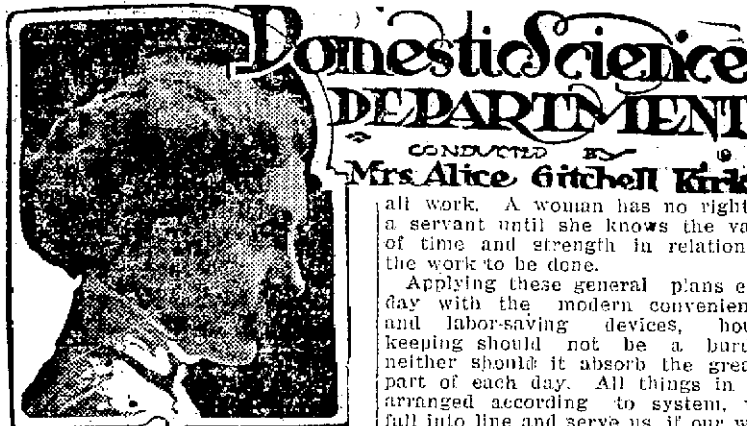

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

You are warned to be careful of fire or accident and to keep a steady watch on your affairs. You are in danger of blaming others for some of those born today will be prone to give way to temper. This weakness should be wisely corrected when they are very young, lest they grow up irresponsibly useless. If their wills are strengthened to control their tempers they will have power to conquer all difficulties and will attain great heights.

Garland of Gardens.

You must have lovely cities, said Ruskin, crystallized, not congealed, into form; limited in size, and not casting out the sun and scurf of them into an encircling eruption of shame, but girded each with its sacred pomerium, and with garlands of gardens, full of blossoming trees and softly-guided streams.

Domestic Science DEPARTMENT

CONDUCTED BY Mrs. Alice Gitchell Kirk

all work. A woman has no right to a servant until she knows the value of time and strength in relation to the work to be done.

Applying these general plans each day with the modern conveniences and labor-saving devices, house-keeping should not be a burden, neither should it absorb the greater part of each day. All things in life arranged according to system, will fall into line and serve us, if our wills are strong enough and our purpose sufficiently steady.

Do not take this too seriously, but go into it with cheerfulness and optimism. Ability to think coolly and calmly; self-control is the word, even under pressure. Forget the term nerves, and it will go a long way in producing a good normal condition of health.

Carefully plan each day's work, with grocery orders and menus at least three meals in advance. Then forget it. Do not carry the home, cooking or chasing of germs around on your shoulders. Plan your work, do it and pigeon-hole it. Then fresh air, recreation or whatever suits your pleasure, and you can come back and step into the harness with perfect ease and joy. Try it and see.

Many daughters simply board at home. They have no part in the home or its making. Usually in the beginning it is no fault of theirs. They are "in the way" or "don't bother me," or "I can do it so much quicker," etc. Then later it is very hard to arouse their interest. Every boy and girl in the home should be held responsible for the doing of some one thing every day. Do not be afraid to give and share this responsibility.

Let every member of the family try the following for one week and see how easily the wheels turn. "Every-thing to help and nothing to hinder."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Things Worth Knowing. To Preserve Steel Pens.—Steel pens are destroyed by corrosion from acid in the ink. Put in the ink some nails or old steel pens, the acid will exhaust itself on them and the pens in use will not corrode.

To Clean Granite Ware.—Where mixture has been cooked or burned on half all enamel with cold water and washing soda, heat water to boiling point, empty, when dish may be easily washed. Any washing powder may be substituted for soda.

The Table. Stewed Hamburgers.—Put in skillet or granite pan a little meat (ryings and an onion chopped fine. Let fry brown, then add handful of rolled oats, a little water and one pound of hamburger. Salt and pepper to taste, and let cook slowly 30 minutes. You will find this a change from the usual way of making patties or balls and the taste different.

French Potatoes.—Boil some potatoes in the jacket (nice way to use up small potatoes.) Have some eggs hard-boiled, peel, cut in small squares or slice round. When potatoes are done, peel and slice. Have a basting dish well greased, put in a layer of potatoes, then a layer of eggs, chips of butter and lard. Have potatoes for top layer. Salt each layer, add one cup hot milk, some more butter and lard on top and either bread crumbs or grated cheese. Bake as usual. Serve in the same dish.

Half Frozen Dessert.—Cut top from pineapple, pare away bottom so it will stand firm, scoop out pulp and mix with juice of three oranges; sweeten, put in glass fruit jar and pack in ice or snow two hours. When ready to serve, turn mixture into pineapple shell and garnish the base.

Marmalades. Orange.—As oranges are so cheap and plentiful now I am sending my famous old Scotch recipe. I have tried many other recipes for it, but find none equal to this one. Take one dozen small oranges and four lemons. Wipe on clean wet cloth. Peel off yellow rind. Take off white and throw it

SLEEPING AFTER MEALS.

Some writers say that sleeping after a meal is injurious. This is disproved by experiments made upon animals and by the fact that the infant and animals generally tend to sleep after a meal. When food is taken into the stomach, blood is drawn from the head to the stomach and this is the cause of the drowsiness that naturally follows a substantial meal, as the volume of blood in the head is reduced during sleep. It has been found by experiment in many cases, especially nervous cases, that it is distinctly beneficial to sleep for a few minutes after dinner, at noon. Sit down in an easy chair and relax, mentally and physically; begin to read some light literature, expecting to become sleepy; after a few minutes drop the head gradually and lose consciousness for a few minutes. It is not advisable to lie down.

INDUSTRIAL TRAINING DISCUSSED BY CLUB

PROGRAM ON THE VOCATIONAL TRAINING PRESENT AT MEETING OF CONGRESSIONAL MEN'S BROTHERHOOD.

WARREN HICKS SPEAKS

Director of Industrial Training Work in Wisconsin Told of What is Being Done in State and Elsewhere—Dr. Beaton Gave Address.

Warren E. Hicks of Madison, director of industrial education in the state of Wisconsin, was the speaker of the evening at the meeting of the Men's Brotherhood of the Congregational church held in the church parlors last evening. Following a banquet served at half past six o'clock, the evening's program was given over to a consideration of the subject of vocational training, Supt. H. C. Buell of the city schools acting as toastmaster. In addition to the address given by Mr. Hicks, Dr. David Beaton, pastor of the church, presented his views of the subject of industrial education.

Before introducing Mr. Hicks, Mr. Buell spoke briefly of the work in industrial training that is being done in the local schools, discussing the work in the manual training and domestic science courses and the newly established agricultural course. City boys, he said, have shown more interest in this course, than those who live in the country, and are more alert to its advantages.

Turning to the subject of the industrial school established here, he spoke of the organization of the school here and the interest shown in it from the start. There are now three hundred enrolled in the night school, he said. He also spoke of the work in the various classes, and told of what is being done in the day school for boys and girls between the ages of fourteen and sixteen, working under permits, who are compelled by law to attend. One great phase of the situation, he said, is that although the law requires these boys and girls to attend the school and cuts down the hours they are allowed to work, not one of them has been discharged by the men who employ them.

Mr. Hicks in his speech first took up a discussion of the way the law establishing industrial schools had been taken up in Wisconsin, and the way it was received by the people, as shown by the fact that within six months thirty cities, the full number authorized by the law, had organized local boards of industrial education. He emphasized the fact that these industrial and continuation schools are to furnish supplementary education, and in no way conflict with the work in the public high schools or grade schools. He spoke of the advantages offered to children who were forced to leave school between the ages of fourteen and sixteen, and spoke in especial praise of the all day vocational school at Superior. This, he said, takes care of the boys and girls who are temporarily thrown out of employment, keeping them in school and training them until they again secure work. While they are in school, he said, those in charge communicate with employers to find work for the young people, and thus vocational guidance is furnished for those young people of the city.

The law establishing industrial schools, he said, has failed in a measure in handling the matter of apprentices. The unions, he said, had stated that there were a thousand apprentices in the state, and in the law it was incorporated that apprentices should have a contract with their employer, should be allowed to learn about all branches of their trade, and should go to school five hours a week. Thus far, he said, about two hundred contracts have been issued to apprentices and in one instance, thirty apprentices became helpers and all obligations of the employers were cut off. This portion of the law, he said, was unpopular both with the employer and with labor.

Model industrial and continuation schools established in some of the large cities outside of the state were described by the speaker, who went into some detail regarding those in Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Boston, and Cleveland, and he discussed the finding of the committee appointed in New York City to make a report on vocational training for the children in employment there. Applied art, he said, he believed should be taught in the schools for vocational training.

Mr. Hicks commended the feature of the law which places both employers and members of the laboring classes on the board of industrial education. Regarding the necessity of a separate board to administer the industrial school's, he said it was not a question of a separate administration of the public and continuation schools, and that in time the regular boards of education might come to administer the industrial schools.

At the close of his speech, Mr. Hicks answered questions asked by members of the club, explaining points of the law with regard to apprentices and their contracts. He spoke in words of high praise of the work done at the Stout Institute where teachers for industrial work are trained.

The industrial system of education was highly commended by Dr. David Beaton in his address, which closed the evening's program. The educational system in America is the greatest institution the people have for providing opportunities for ignorant citizens. He re-affirmed the statement of the previous speaker that the industrial school is a supplemental system to the public schools, and is in no way a criticism of the work done in the public schools.

"It is a point of fatal weakness in our present school system," he said, "that so many children leave school at the fifth or sixth grade and between the ages of fourteen and sixteen, because of weakness in our civic system. I believe the time has come when the compulsory system has to be extended. I believe we must teach the children of our community to become self-supporting. The old idea of individual liberty—the bottom has dropped out of it, and instead of individual liberty, there is the interest of the community to be served. The community must face the fact that it has defects, physical and mental, in its midst, and it must educate them. It also has delinquents, partly due to physical defects and partly due to neglect. Then comes a class above where the parents are indifferent, and there are parents today who have so little of the idea of Americanism that they are exploiting the flesh and blood of their own children to secure support for themselves. We are face to face with three or four classes that we used to call in Europe the 'chronic paupers'."

Reasons why industrial training is of supreme value, as given by Dr. Kirschensteiner at an educational meeting, were set forth by Dr. Beaton as four in number: First, that it gives mechanical skill; second, economic insight; third, commercial consciousness; and at last of all, moral discipline, and he gave especial emphasis to the latter phase, stating that in his belief industrial training is one of the greatest safeguards for the morality of the young men and women who take it.

STUFFED GOOSE IS WATERTOWN PRODUCT

Process of Preparing Fowls for Market Described in Paper Read at Veterinarians' Meeting.

"Stuffed geese, though it is a product that the department of agriculture has not heard of in the United States, is the product that made Watertown, Wis., famous," read a part of a paper on "Stuffed Geese" which was read before the annual convention of the Wisconsin State Veterinary society by Miss Fleurette Hartwig of Watertown.

"The farmer who intends to make a practice of stuffing geese has not an easy task before him," she continued. "He must first secure the heaviest breed of geese possible. The next essential is to rear the geese in such a manner that they remain gentle. The farmer must devote three or four days to the training of the geese and the winning of their confidence. Without this confidence the farmer can do absolutely nothing with them."

"The stuffing process begins about Thanksgiving time, when the geese have reached their fullest development. It takes twenty-one days to stuff a goose. Each goose is weighed and all weighing less than fifteen pounds she considered unprofitable for the long and tedious work of stuffing. All those weighing more than fifteen pounds are placed in pens. A constant change of water and bedding is made in these pens. Then the food is prepared."

Noodles Are Cooked. "A cheap grade of flour, some white cornmeal and water are worked into a dough. This dough is forced through a sausage machine and as the one-half inch sausage emerges it is cut into three inch noodles. These noodles are placed into a boiler and cooked until they rise to the surface."

"You understand that this food is practically predigested. The noodles are then dipped into water, which forms a slimy gelatinlike surface and helps the noodle on its way down the throat of the goose. The food is now ready for use."

"Experience is invaluable now, for the farmer cannot know the capacity of each goose. The geese are stuffed lightly at first, two or three noodles every three or four hours. The amount is gradually increased and the interval lessened. Many people labor under the mistaken idea that the geese are tormented into taking food. This is not true. The fact that stuffed geese grow fat is ample proof that they are not tormented. As soon as a goose is fed more than it can digest it grows thin. The farmer must regulate its food accordingly. The last few days the geese are stuffed with as much food as possible. There is always an extra amount of food and water in the stalls. The geese are then slaughtered.

How Dressed For Market. "Fine feathers make fine birds," they say. The goose robbed of its feathers must look elsewhere for beauty. The stuffed goose establishes its reputation by its fat and plump appearance. This is accentuated by pulling the legs back and pressing the wings under the legs. The stuffed goose is now ready for the market."

"The stuffed goose consists mostly of fat and liver. The Jews are the main consumers of this product. They eat the stuffed goose, fat for fat. The liver, which has reached an abnormal size—sometimes weighing from three to four pounds—brings from $2 to $3 per pound in the New York market. It is considered a great delicacy and is prepared in all sorts of wonderful dishes. If when visiting a New York or Parisian hotel, you see 'Pate de Foie Gras' enlisted on your menu, order some, for you will surely be served part of the anatomy of a goose stuffed in Watertown."

The lean man longs to put on weight, and eats fat-building foods, and after all—so mean is fate—he can't acquire the goods. Eggs, ham and milk and things like those he swallows day by day, and still he leans away. The fat man, hoping to get thin and willowy and pink, to sacrifice his double chin and make his waist-line shrink, eats things which have no heat or force, and drinks denatured whey; he browses PERVITY like a cow or horse lay. Instead of growing slim and sweet his mighty girth expands, until he cannot see his feet, or reach them with his hands. In vain the living skeleton may gorge himself with grub; he'll still remain, when he is done, the same old fleshless dub. In vain the man who breaks the scale would find of fat succor; his foolish torturings will fail to rid him of his grease. So let us then be all serene, from idle longings free, and sing and dance, the fat and lean in joyous ecstasy; and let no fadder be denied when sounds the dinner bell; we'll take the gifts the gods provide, and all is passing well.

MRS. ROSS HOSTESS TO THREE BROADHEAD CLUBS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Broadhead, Jan. 8.—The Sub-Rosa, Roman Dozen and K. K. K. clubs gathered at the home of Mrs. Frank Ross on Tuesday evening to give that lady a real party. Sixteen old ladies assembled with well-filled baskets and a most sumptuous six o'clock dinner was served after which the hours were spent socially in a very happy manner. Mrs. Ross expects to leave in a few days on an extended trip in the west. She will visit points in Montana, Washington and the Dakotas and will be absent a number of weeks.

R. C. Mordock and daughters, Hazel and Marjorie of Beloit, were here Tuesday to attend the funeral of the gentleman's father, Mr. Daniel Mordock.

Ike Macomber left Tuesday morning on a trip to Pensacola, Fla. He will be absent about a month. Hanson Hall left Tuesday morning for Janesville to work in tobacco.

Mrs. Mattie Lake is among those on the sick list.

A Coffee Cup

Contains

Over 2½ Grains of Caffeine.

Physicians recognize this thing to be of poisonous effect upon stomach, heart and nerves. Scientists employed by the U. S. Government found, in the famous Rabbit Case, that an amount of caffeine equivalent to that contained in two average cups of coffee killed a Rabbit.

What wonder then, if you are a coffee-drinker, that you suffer from indigestion, heart disturbance, headache and biliousness, sleeplessness, or nerve irritation?

Multiply 2½ grains of caffeine by the number of cups of coffee you drink each day and you will determine the amount of poison you give yourself daily.

Eminent physicians are protesting against the present use of coffee. (Your family doctor can vouch for this.)

The aches and ills of your own body also protest when the burden becomes too heavy.

Doesn't your own common sense suggest that you quit coffee now?

DINNER STORIES

Jones is a very little man but he always has his wits about him. The other day he was alone in his suburban villa when a formidable looking tramp knocked at the door and insolently demanded refreshments. "I'm looking for work," he said, "and want something to eat at once, or there'll be some trouble." And he coolly sat down on the step. Now, Jones didn't get flustered a bit, but got an alarm clock and wound it up. Then he went into the front room, where his voice could be heard by the tramp. Causing the alarm to ring, he shouted into the clock: "Hallo! Are you there? Give me the police station—sharp, please." The tramp was all attention, and thought that Jones must be on the telephone exchange. Then he heard the following counter-attack conversation:

"Are you the police station? Please send a constable to my house at once. There is a tramp here who refuses to leave? What? Yes, he ought to be in prison. All right."

When he went to the door again the tramp had gone—and so had three hats and four overcoats.

The neatness of the New England housekeeper is a matter of common remark and husbands in that part of the country are supposed to appreciate their advantages.

A bit of dialogue reported as follows shows that there must be another side to the matter:

"Martha, have you wiped the sink dry yet?" asked the farmer as he made final preparations for the night. "Yes, Josiah," she replied. "Why do you ask?"

"Well, I did want a drink, but I guess I can get along until morning."

SIDEWALK KETCHES.

WHY WHO'S WHO.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

THE post of leader of an amateur brass band is an onerous, honorary and sometimes ornary position. The leader is supposed to beat time with one foot and bring the straying brethren back into close contact with the right key by blowing the lining out of a B-flat cornet. When, however, a band is assembled whose members figure on playing the same tune, the position of leader is a soft and satisfying snore.

One of the most highly trained and supplemented leaders of the present era is John Philip Sousa, who is known wherever the amateur clarinetist makes his lair.

Mr. Sousa was born in Washington at a youthful age, and while still in his teens could be seen flitting from place to place in company with the artistic temperament and a discouraged fiddle. He used to lull the neighbors to sleep with some sprightly variations on "Listen to the Mocking Bird" while those who couldn't sleep sat up in bed and uttered unholo and spiteful remarks.

At the age of seventeen John Philip became a conductor, having been promoted over several head breakers. He is one of the few conductors in history who can keep the alto and tenor horns from falling several feet below the pitch. He is also opposed to playing the "Anvil Chorus" whenever anything like an encore comes along.

When in the act of conducting a subdued band through the key of six sharps Mr. Sousa gives a clever imitation of a human hay rake. He has lateral, reverse, side and rotary action, and when reaching for a pianissimo will stand in one proboscis for several seconds at a time.

Mr. Sousa has composed some pieces which the silver cornet band has decomposed to quite an extent. His "Stars and Stripes Forever" for instance, is played in several different languages and fourteen different tempos, and pursues the feeling tour-ist from Portland, Oregon, to Buzzard's Bay.

Old Uncle Pete has cashed in his checks. His whiskers froze to a sharp apex. He slipped and fell. With a terrified yell. And stabled himself in the solar plex.

There was an old maid who was never afraid. To knock all her friends with a will. The gossip she made was her whole stock in trade— It was all grist that came to her mill.

She caught cold one day and contracted a pain. That stopped her from knocking on this church again. She knocked at the gate of St. Peter's in vain, And she's probably knocking there still.

There was a young woman named Lou, Who wore a shirtwaist peek-a-boo. She went out in the blizzard, Caught cold in her gizzard, Funeral Wednesday at two.

Broke the Record. Paid her fare from far off Sweden. Met her at the railroad train. She was what we had been needin' And had sought for long in vain. Was not very stylish lookin' And the English didn't know, She was ignorant of cookin' And did not pretend to sew.

For her wages she got double. What we could afford to pay. Then we bade farewell to trouble And we said, "This one will stay." Let her eat with us at dinner. Let her have the guest room, too. And we'd thought we'd picked a winner. Who'd be constant tried and true.

But one day our next door neighbor Talked to her by making signs. And she changed her field of labor With our wash still on the lines. He had offered her a dollar More in "income" so to speak, And we didn't dare to "holer." For we'd kept her most a week.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY CASE FROM FOOTVILLE

Russell Cowan Pleads Guilty to Making Assault on Harold H. Ham.

—Pays Small Fine. Russell Cowan of Footville was placed under arrest yesterday by Deputy Sheriff W. E. Dullin, charged with making an assault and battery upon Harold H. Ham of the same place. Cowan was arraigned in the municipal court here late yesterday afternoon, pleaded guilty, and paid a fine of $2 and costs, amounting to $7.10. Mr. Ham is connected with the new condensed milk factory at Footville.

Matter Easily Settled. Butler—"Quick! Quick! Your wife, sir, is climbing out of the window to elope with your chauffeur, sir." Master—"Humph! Ask them, as they pass the newspaper office, to insert an 'ad' for a new chauffeur."

"Jay Walking." "Jay walking" is a recognized form of walking, at any rate in the south, where a person who was addicted to it met his death, and the coroner's report used this phrase to describe what the man was doing. It appears that the "jay walker" is a walker who cuts across corners and goes across the street anywhere and at any angle, instead of making use of the crossing.

King of Beasts Easily Scared. A curious story comes from Kama-cha, South Africa. Some English ladies were picnicking in a glade near Hall's Gate, Kama-cha, recently, when they were suddenly confronted by a lion. He was scared, presumably at the volume of steam from a tea-kettle, for he only roared and made off.

SURELY TAKE "SYRUP OF FIGS" IF HEADACHY, BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED

SWEETENS YOUR STOMACH, CLEARS YOUR HEAD AND THOROUGHLY CLEANS YOUR LIVER AND 30 FEET OF BOWELS OF SOUR BILE, FOUL GASES AND CLOGGED-UP WASTE.

All those days when you feel miserable, headachy, bilious and dull are due to torpid liver and sluggish bowels. The days when your stomach is sour and full of gas, when you have indigestion, the nights when your nerves twitch and you are restless and can't sleep could be avoided with a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs. Isn't it foolish to be distressed when there is such a pleasant way to overcome it?

Give your inactive liver and ten yards of waste-clogged bowels a thorough cleansing this time. Put an end to constipation.

Take a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs tonight, sure, and just see for yourself by morning, how gently but thoroughly all the sour bile, undigested fermenting food and clogged up waste matter is moved on and out of your system—no nausea—no griping—no weakness.

You simply can't have your liver inactive and your thirty feet of bowels constipated with sour, decaying waste matter and feel well. The need of a laxative is a natural need, but with delicious Syrup of Figs you are not drugging yourself. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it can not injure.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna." Refuse, with scorn, any of the so-called Fig-Syrup imitations. They are meant to deceive you. Look on the label. The genuine, old reliable, bears the name, California Fig Syrup Company.

You Can't Make Your Farm Pay

If You Eat the Doughnut and Offer the Hole as Collateral

THERE'S a man out in Illinois who owns a bank and lends money to farmers. He wanted to get at both sides of the question of borrowing and lending, so he got busy on a half-section of land and farmed it on the principle of a square deal to the soil. What he found out was this: It's bad business, both for the farmer and the banker, for the farmer to eat the doughnut and offer the hole as collateral on a loan.

It's one of those simple solutions of a big financial problem that engaged the attention of the President of the United States and a group of Governors, meeting at the White House to discuss this great problem only a few weeks ago. Presidents of Insurance Companies, bankers, men and institutions with money to invest, farmers who want to borrow money—all these people will agree with us that Mr. Harris has thrown the searchlight of common sense on a subject that seemed as thick as a London fog.

There is a host of good things in this week's issue of THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, but

Financing the Farmer

By B. F. HARRIS

Successful Banker-Farmer and Ex-President of the Illinois Bankers' Association will be read with rare interest by every man whose business it is to lend money, or to borrow it—which means several million people.

Stop That Cough In A Minute. Would you give morphine or chloroform to your baby or take it yourself? Of course not. Yet most patent cough cures contain one or both. They stop a cough in a minute, which is dangerous. A cough should be cured internally by healing the lungs, loosening the phlegm, throwing it out, which is done by coughing. Badger Cough Balsam does not contain morphine or chloroform. It is made by percolation from bloodroot, lobelia, pine bark, wild cherry, etc. It cures a cough in a few days without filling the lungs with poisonous phlegm. The irritation is relieved, the lungs healed without danger of pneumonia. It's safe for children or old people. Get a bottle today for 25 cents. Badger Cough Balsam is made by Mr. Pfennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist. Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River Sts.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE

ONE MORE CHANGE. "My lord, my chief! My all in all! She cried in accents of despair."

"If I don't get a hat this fall, I'll fly from hence, I swear!"

"You can't deny it," he said sternly. "Penelope, you've been chewing gum again!"

Desperately, frantically, she sobbed on his chest.

Firmly lifting her off the chest and depositing her on the sofa, he dashed the beads of agony off his brow. They fell to the hardwood floor with a metallic clatter.

"I warned you," he continued, "that I would break off our engagement if I caught you at it again. A girl that chews gum is no fit wife for a man. A girl that chews gum would take in a matinee with the butcher money. Penelope, all is over between us."

With a final outburst of desperation she was on his chest again, pleading, begging, beseeching for the love of Mike.

"One more chance," she cried, "and I swear another drop of gum shall never pass those lips!"

"So be it," he replied. "One more chance."

And reaching grimly for his hat, he departed, pausing on the doorstep only long enough to bite off a fresh chew of tobacco.

Simplify Life.
"I do believe in simplicity. It is astonishing as well as sad, how many trivial affairs even the wisest man thinks he must attend to in a day; how singular an affair he thinks he must omit. When the mathematician would solve a difficult problem he first frees the equation of all incumbrances and reduces it to its simplest terms. So simplify the problem of life, distinguish the necessary and the rest.—From Thoreau 'Letters'."

Few Visit "Garden of Eden."
It is said that hardly more than a dozen white travelers in a year visit the Garden of Eden, which is situated in Turkish Arabia, and is too inaccessible to attract any but the most courageous tourists. But perhaps people stay away from fear of being disappointed when they should see it.

NAMED BY THE PEOPLE

Fifty years ago Rev. Father John O'Brien of Lowell, Mass., recommended to his parishioners and friends the prescription that restored him to health and strength, so the people named it Father John's Medicine. It cures colds, heals throat and lungs and builds up the body.

As a guarantee that the story of Father John's Medicine is absolutely true, the sum of $25,000.00 will be given to any charitable institution if it can be shown otherwise.

Father John's Medicine

Cures Colds

Bronchitis, Asthma, all throat and lung troubles. No alcohol or dangerous drugs. Guaranteed.

If you have any difficulty in securing Father John's Medicine from your druggist, write to Father John's Medicine, Lowell, Mass., enclosing $1.00 for a large bottle by express prepaid.

MOLLY McDONALD

A TALE OF THE FRONTIER

By RANDALL PARRISH

Illustrations by J. L. Barnes

The Major leaned back in his chair, but the commandant, after a glance at his officer, answered:

"The pistol used was a small one, such as a woman might carry, and there are marks of a woman's shoe plainly visible at the edge of the ravine. Lieutenant Gaskins was alone when he left the officers' club five minutes before the firing began. You are sure you have never had any controversy with this officer?"

"Perfectly sure, sir. We have never met except on the one occasion already referred to, and then scarcely a dozen words were exchanged."

"How then, Sergeant," and the Colonel spoke very soberly, "do you account for his denouncing you as his assassin?"

"I presumed he was influenced by my arrest, sir; that the shock had affected his brain."

"That supposition will hardly answer. The Lieutenant is not severely wounded, and this morning appears to be perfectly rational. Yet he insists you committed the assault; even refers to you by name."

The accused man pressed one hand to his forehead in bewilderment.

"He still insists I shot him?"

"Yes; to be frank, he's rather bitter about it, and no facts we have brought to bear have any apparent weight. He swears he recognized your face in the face of the first discharge."

The Sergeant stood silent, motionless, his gaze on the Colonel's face.

"I do not know what to say, sir," he answered finally. "I was not there, and you all know it from the men of my troop. There has been no trouble between Lieutenant Gaskins and myself, and I can conceive of no reason why he should desire to involve me in this affair—unless," he paused doubtfully, "unless, sir, he really knows who shot him, and is anxious to shift the blame elsewhere to divert suspicion."

"You mean he may be seeking to shield the real culprit?"

"That is the only explanation that occurs to me, sir."

The Colonel stroked his beard nervously, his glance wandering to the faces of the other officers.

"That might be possible," he acknowledged regretfully, "although I should dislike to believe any officer of my command would be deliberately guilty of so despicable an act. However, all we can do now is endeavor to uncover the truth. You are discharged from arrest, Sergeant Hamlin, and will return to your troop."

man evidently disliked him, and would resent any interference; he had something to conceal, something at stake for which he would battle strenuously. It would be better to let him alone at present, and try to uncover a clue elsewhere. Later, with more facts in his possession, he could face the Lieutenant and compel his acknowledgment. These considerations caused him to turn sharply and walk straight toward the ravine. Yet his investigations there brought few results. On the upper bank were the marks of a woman's shoe, a slender footprint clearly defined, but the lower portion of the ravine was rocky, and the trail soon lost. He passed down beyond the stables, realizing how easily the fugitives, under cover of darkness, could have escaped. The stable guard could have seen nothing from his station, and just below was the hard-packed road leading to the river and the straggling town. There was nothing to trace, and Hamlin climbed back up the bluff completely baffled but desperately resolved to unlock the mystery.

"I Do Not Know What to Say, Sir," he Answered Finally.

The harder the solution appeared, the more determined he became to solve it. As he came out, opposite the barrack entrance, a carriage drove in past the guard-house, the guard presenting arms, and circled the parade in the direction of officers' row. It contained a soldier driver and two ladies, and the Sergeant's face flushed under its tan as he recognized Miss McDonald. Would she notice him—speak to him? The man could not forbear the lifting of his eyes to her face as the carriage swept by. He saw her glance toward him, smile, with a little gesture of recognition, and stood there baredheaded, his heart throbbing wildly. With that look, that smile, he instantly realized two facts of importance—she was willing to meet him on terms of friendship, and she had not recognized him the evening previous as he ran past her in the dark.

Hamlin, his thoughts entirely centered upon Miss McDonald, had scarcely noted her companion, yet as he lingered while the carriage drew up before the Major's quarters, he seemed to remember vaguely that she was a strikingly beautiful blonde, with face shadowed by a broad hair. Although larger, and with light fluffy hair and blue eyes, the lady's features were strangely like those of her slightly younger companion. The memory of these grew clearer before the Sergeant—the whiteness of the face, the sudden lowering of the head; then he knew her; across the chasm of years her identity smote him as a blow; his breath came quickly and his fingers clenched.

"My God!" he muttered, unconsciously. "That was Vera! She has changed, wonderfully changed, but she knew me. What, in Heaven's name, can she be doing here, and with Molly?"

With straining eyes he stared after them until they both disappeared together within the house. Miss McDonald glanced back toward him once almost shyly, but the other never turned her head. The carriage drove away toward the stables. Feeling as though he had looked upon a ghost, Hamlin turned to enter the barracks. An infantry soldier leaned negligently in the doorway smoking.

"You're the sergeant who saved that girl down the trail, ain't yer?" he asked indolently. "Thought so; I was one o' Gaskins' men."

Hamlin accepted the hand thrust forth, but with mind elsewhere.

"Do you happen to know who that was with Miss McDonald?" he asked.

"Didn't see 'em, only their backs as they went in—nice lookin' blonde."

"Yes; rather tall, with very light hair."

"Oh, that's Mrs. Dupont."

"Mrs. Dupont?" the name evidently a surprise; "wife of one of the officers?"

"No, she's no army dame. Husband's a cattleman. Got a range on the Cowardin, south o' here, but I reckon the missus don't like that sort of thing much. Lives in St. Louis mostly, but has been stoppin' with the McDonalds for a month or two now. Heard she was a niece of the Major's, an' reckon she must be, or thar'd been a flare up long ago. She's a hard fyer, she is, an' she's got the Lieutenant goin' all right."

"Gaskins?"

"Sure; he's a lady-killer, but thar's 'bout all the kind o' killer he is, fer as I ever noticed—one o' yer he-dicks. Thar ain't hardly an officer in this garrison that ain't just achin' fer ter kick that squit, but ther women—oh, Lord; they think he's a little tin god on wheels. Beats hell, don't it, what money will do fer a damn fool?"

Hamlin stood a moment silent, half inclined to ask another question, but crushing back the inclination. Then he walked down the hall to the quarters assigned "M" troop, and across to his bed in the far corner. There were only a few of the men present, most of whom were busily engaged at a game of cards, and he sat down where he could gaze out the window and think. Here was a new complication, a fresh puzzle to be unraveled. He had never expected this woman to come into his life again; she had become a blurred, unpleasant memory, a bit of his past which he had supposed was blotted out forever. Mrs. Dupont—then she had not married Le Fevre after all! He dully wondered why, yet was not altogether surprised. Even as he turned this fact over and over in his mind, speculating upon it, he became aware of a man leaving the rear door of McDonald's quarters, and advancing back of officers' row toward the barracks. As the fellow drew near, Hamlin recognized the soldier who had been driving the carriage. A moment later the man entered the room, spoke to the group of card players, and then came straight across toward him.

"Sergeant Hamlin?"

"Yes."

"I was asked to hand you this note; there is no answer."

Hamlin held it unopened until the fellow disappeared, hesitating between hope and dread. Which of the two women had ventured to write him? What would be the unexpected message? At last his eyes scanned the three short lines:

"You recognized me, and we must understand each other. At ten to-night ask the Clerk of the Occidental."

CHAPTER XVI.

The Meeting.
Hamlin's first impulse was to ignore the note, trusting his position in the ranks would be sufficient barrier to prevent any chance meeting, and believing his stay at that garrison would be only a brief one. Sheridan was evidently preparing for an early offensive campaign, and it was rumored on all sides that the Seventh Cavalry had been selected for active field service. Indeed, the urgent orders for the consolidation of the regiment from scattered posts must mean this. Any day might bring orders, and he could easily avoid this Mrs. Dupont until then. Except for a faint curiosity, the Sergeant felt no inclination to meet the woman. Whatever influence she might have once exercised over him had been thoroughly overcome by years and absence. Even the unexpected sight of her again—seemingly as beautiful as ever—had failed to awaken the spell of the past. It was almost with a thrill of delight that Hamlin realized this—that he was in truth utterly free of her influence.

There had been times when he had anticipated such a possible meeting with dread; when he had doubted his own heart, the strength of his will to resist. But now he knew he stood absolutely independent and could laugh at her wiles. She who had once been all-trusted, loved, worshipped with all the mad fervor of youth—had become only a dead memory. Between them stretched a chasm never to be bridged.

What could the woman possibly want of him? To explain the past? To justify herself? He knew enough already, and desired to know no more. Could she hope—natural coquette—that she would regain her hold upon him? The man smiled grimly, confident of his own strength. Yet why should she care for such a conquest, the winning of a common soldier? There must be some better reason, some more subtle purpose. Could it be that she feared him, that she was afraid that he might speak to her injury? This was by far the most likely supposition. Molly McDonald—the woman was aware of their acquaintance, and was already alarmed at its possible result.

Hamlin stood up resolved. He would meet the woman, not from any desire of his own, but to learn her purpose, and protect the girl. The meeting could not injure him, not even bring a swifter beating of the heart, but might give him opportunity to serve the other. And Le Fevre—surely she could tell him something of Le Fevre.

G. A. R. AND W. R. C. TO HOLD INSTALLATION

Join Installation Ceremonies to be Held in Hall in Evansville Next Thursday Evening.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Evansville, Jan. 9.—There will be a joint installation of officers-elect of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. in their hall on next Thursday evening, January 16. Dr. Beebe of Beloit will install those of the Grand Army while Mrs. Carry Glenn of Janesville, past department inspector of Woman's Relief Corps will install the officers of the W. R. C. An oyster supper will be served to all members of the two bodies from five-thirty until all are served. On account of the large membership of the two organizations and the small room in which to do the work, it was decided to have only the members of both orders present at the supper and ceremony. Four candidates of the W. R. C. will be guests of honor.

All members requested to be in attendance.

Golden Wedding.
Mr. and Mrs. George Shaw were pleasantly surprised at their home on First street last Tuesday evening by twenty-five neighbors and friends, the event being their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Most of those present had been in attendance at their fortieth anniversary, ten years ago. The evening was spent in social chat, refreshments being served from the well filled baskets provided by the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Shaw were presented with many flowers and enjoyed the evening so much more in that the surprise was complete.

Council Meeting.
At this week's meeting of the city council, aside from the allowing of the usual bills, the following business was transacted:

An ordinance was passed authorizing the council to appraise the new street running east from the fair grounds across Longfield to South Second street and assess persons owning property adjoining same for benefits and damages.

An ordinance was also passed which will compel persons to keep clean all sidewalks on their property.

Mrs. Gill Seales is very ill at this writing.

Miss Fern Cleveland returned yesterday from Albany where she has been visiting relatives.

Mrs. John Lemmel is visiting her son in Albany.

Townsend and Hyne have moved into their new garage (the old Potter building) three new autos.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Thomas and family are moving their household goods to Glen Oak, a new town where scarcity of houses will force them to live in a box car for the remainder of the winter.

Mr. A. E. Tomlin returned yesterday from a business trip in the north.

R. E. Saladay was a Janesville business visitor yesterday.

Palmer Slawson visited in Footville, yesterday.

Mrs. Blanche Moore Brooke formerly of Evansville, now living in Washington, writes back that water is three feet deep in houses where she resides.

Will Campbell of Madison, was a local visitor yesterday.

Miss Mary Schaefer of Footville, was a local caller yesterday.

Mrs. David Andrews of Calumet, was a shopper here yesterday.

Ernest Harnack of Calumet, was a business caller here Tuesday.

George Henry Howard of Magnolia, spent yesterday with local relatives.

Clint Scholtz of Brooklyn, was a local caller yesterday.

Fred Black of Monticello, is visiting local relatives.

Miss Barbara Pearsall spent yesterday with Janesville friends.

Mrs. F. M. Ames of Brooklyn, spent yesterday with local relatives.

Mrs. Nettie Frazor of Peterson, Iowa, is visiting at the Fred Rawley home.

Jim Douglas and wife have returned from Lenville, Michigan, where they have been visiting relatives.

C. E. Collins of Milwaukee, is visiting in town.

H. E. Klusmeyer of Madison, was a business caller here yesterday.

E. S. Roberts was a Janesville visitor yesterday.

Henry Monshan.

Henry Monshan, died Jan. 6, 1913, aged seventy-three years, five months, twenty-five days. Henry Monshan was born at Lannesdorf, Germany, July 12, 1839, and came to America when fifteen years of age and settled in the village of Watertown, Wis., where he resided about five years. He then moved to Evansville in 1859, engaged in the harness making business, which he has improved and built up and in which he continued up to the time of his death which came very suddenly, for though not feeling well, he was able to be up and attend his business.

He was married October 11, 1868 to Miss Mary Welsh, who still survives him along with three sons, William of Rockford, C. E. and E. C. both of Milwaukee, and two daughters, Mrs. W. G. Race of Oconomowoc, and Mrs. J. T. Albert of Milwaukee, Wis.

Funeral services were held yesterday at the house at two o'clock, Rev. Father H. Willmann, of the Janesville Episcopal church officiating. Interment was in Maple Hill cemetery.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.

The office hours of the city treasurer during the month of January will be from 8:30 to 12 a. m., and 1 to 6 p. m., and Wednesday and Saturday evenings from 7 to 8 o'clock.

KENTUCKIAN IS CHARGED WITH MURDERING BROTHER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Louisville, Ky., Jan. 9.—The case of Walter Philpot, charged with the murder of his brother, Jacob Philpot, was called in court today for trial. The accused shot and killed his brother on August 31 last, while they were in a boat with several companions in the Ohio river opposite this city. Philpot claims that the killing was an accident as he had no intention of shooting his brother.

GIVE RECEPTION IN HONOR OF MRS. AND MISS CLEVELAND

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—At a reception given at the home of Mrs. John Hays Hammond this afternoon Mrs. Grover Cleveland made her first appearance in Washington society since she ceased to be mistress of the White House fifteen years ago. Miss Esther Cleveland shared with her mother the honors of the occasion. Many of the foremost representatives of official and resident society attended the function.

Why the Nickname.
"Why do they call him the 'Fighting Parson'?" "Because he has to fight his parishioners to get his salary."—Judge.

HINTS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS.

Keep Foley's Honey and Tar Compound always on hand, and you can quickly head off a cold by its prompt use. It contains no opiates, heat and soothes the inflamed air passages, stops the cough, and may save a big doctor's bill. J. P. Higgins, Stanton, Wis., writes that "One bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound cured me of a bad cough. I find it a sure cure for coughs and colds." In a yellow package. Badger Drug Co.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE

THE SON'S DECALOGUE.

First.—Thou shalt honor thy father and thy mother in the flesh and shalt heed the counsels of thy father and bring joy to the heart of thy mother.

Second.—Thou shalt keep thy soul free from guile in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation, and thy body pure, that thou mayest dwell long in the land the Lord thy God hath given thee.

Third.—Thou shalt not profane the name of thy God with thy lips, and thou shalt order thy speech as in the sight of thy mother or thy sister or thy sweetheart, that they may respect thee.

Fourth.—Thou shalt not spend thy strength, but shalt save thy vigor for the tasks that are before thee, and thou shalt not drink strong drink nor consume thy body and contaminate thy soul in dissipations.

Fifth.—Thou shalt not get thy money by graft, neither risk thy capital in games of chance nor in the speculations that bring disaster, and thou shalt beware the board of trade, which consumes the substance of fools.

Sixth.—Thou shalt not speak nor act deceitfully to thy neighbor. Thy eye shall be true, and thy hand shall be true, so that thou shalt be like a great rock in a weary land and a covert for the weak.

Seventh.—Thou shalt not dodge thy head when thy enemy vaunteth himself, nor shalt thou flee when no man pursueth thee, nor shalt thou fall because of the sneer of him for whom thy soul carest nothing, but shalt stand four square to all the winds that blow upon thee.

Eighth.—Thou shalt not quit thy school ere thou hast finished (save for necessity's sake) that thou mayest take a cheap job for the sake of lucre, but thou shalt diligently study thy books to the end thereof that thou mayest know what is the good way of life.

Ninth.—Thou shalt not covet the easy job nor look upon the snip that is soft, but thou shalt take the hard job, which the vain man avoideth, because if thou shalt take the little job thou shalt be but a snail man.

Tenth.—Thou shalt not turn away thy face from thy father and thy mother that brought thee up, nor from thy kin of blood that loveth thee, nor from him who hath been faithful to thee for many days, nor be guilty of the sin of ingratitude.
